Kennedy To Meet Brazil's President

To Discuss Cold War, Cuba, Castro

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy agreed Saturday to a meeting with President-elect Janio Quadros of Brazil — a meeting destined to discuss Cuba, Castro and Communist inroads into the Western world.

The decision followed a bid to Kennedy from outgoing Brazilian President Juscelino Kubitschek to help block "the spread of the cold war that has already begun its evil penetration amidst us."

Kubitschek has economic improvements in mind. Kennedy did not reply immediately.

Kennedy scarcely had settled down for a vacation beside the Atlantic Saturday, to rest up from the arduous campaign for the White House, before receiving a Brazilian delegation.

But over the weekend, aides said, the emphasis was to be on soaking up sun, surf and solitude —no more appointments. Next week Kennedy is heading into a round of conferences in preparation for the change-over of administrations.

The Massachusetts senator went to bed early Friday night, slept late, then received the Brazilians shortly before noon at the Spanish-style family home of stucco and tile on the ocean front.

As the personal representative of Quadros, Joao Dantas told Kennedy the Brazilian president-elect, now in Europe, would like to see the senator if possible. Kennedy's press secretary, Pierre Salinger, reported that Kennedy "expressed a desire to see Mr. Quadros at any mutually acceptable time," and that Dantas would try to set up a date.

Kennedy repeatedly made a point during his campaign for the presidency that Quadros had seen fit to visit Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro during Quadros' own campaign. Kennedy cited this in support of his contention that American prestige in the world had dipped during the Eisenhower administration.

C. A. Bernardes, charge d'affaires of the Brazilian Embassy in Washington, told reporters that Quadros privately has expressed views similar to those of Kennedy that the nations of the Western Hemisphere must do something about the problem of Cuba.

"This is obviously what they are going to talk about," he said.

The Brazilian delegation thought perhaps a meeting could be arranged for the latter part of November.

Kennedy will be inaugurated president Jan. 20, Quadros Jan. 30.

Salinger said Dantas had mentioned that Quadros, like Kennedy, is 43 and that Quadros won his

Defense Department Ready To Transfer Control To Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Liaison representatives of the incoming Kennedy administration will be cleared by the Pentagon for access to the top-secret information they will need in preparing for transition of Defense Department control.

Preparations for consultations with and briefings of the Kennedy representatives by Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates and his aides were finished Saturday. Still lacking was the name of the man or men who would be sent by Clark Clifford, chief liaison representative for President-elect John F. Kennedy.

The sessions could be merely broad administrative and budget discussions with Gates and his civilian aides. Or military operational officers such as the Joint Chiefs of Staff could be called in. It will depend on what the Kennedy representatives want, a Pentagon spokesman said.

Kennedy representatives aren't likely to seek to influence defense planning for the period between now and next Jan. 20, when Kennedy takes office.

"This will be an Eisenhower military budget, not a Kennedy budget, which is presented to Congress at the beginning of the session," the spokesman said.

But what happens to the military budget thereafter obviously will be the affair of President-elect Kennedy and the Democratic-controlled Congress.

Whether the liaison talks will start before Kennedy chooses the man to head the Defense Department, sometime after Thanksgiving, was not clear. There has been no hint of the choice from Kennedy's headquarters. But speculation was plentiful.

Most of the names of possible appointees were those of former Pentagon officials during previous Democratic administrations. The speculation included: Thomas K. Finletter, Air Force secretary in the Truman administration; Frank Pace, former Army Secretary and now head of General Dynamics Corp.; and Dan A. Kimball, secretary of the Navy under Truman and now President of Aerojet General Corp.

The guessing includes the names of some senators, among them Stuart Symington of Missouri, another former air secretary, and Henry M. Jackson of Washington.

If Kennedy turns to the business world, he could be confronted with the same problem that faced the Eisenhower administration — the conflict of interest law.

To accept the defense post, an appointee must divest himself of interest in any company having contracts with the government. Among the major military contracting companies are General Dynamics and Aerojet General.

Spy Satellite Orbits Earth

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—Discoverer XVII-first of a series of new military spy satellites capable of changing course if threatened — rocketed into orbit Saturday.

After hours of confusion blamed on insufficient radio data, the Air Force announced the satellite was whizzing around the earth once every 96 minutes.

A spokesman said the egg-shaped orbit was nearly perfect, taking the 2,100-pound satellite as far as 615 miles from the earth and bringing it back to 118 miles at the closest point.

Late Sunday afternoon it is to drop a 300-pound capsule for recovery by air and sea forces near Hawaii. Contents of the satellite and its capsule were not disclosed. It is known, however, that future satellites of this type called Agena B have been designed to carry TV cameras and send surveillance films back to American territory.

The orbit of the satellite launched at 12:42 p.m. will take it over Russian territory several times each day.

The 25-foot satellite is six feet longer and 400 pounds heavier than the Agena A second stage of earlier Discoverers. It is capable of stopping and restarting its engine on command from the ground.

This change in speed would allow the satellite to alter its orbit and thus avoid a missile sent up to knock it down.

The Air Force said there was no plan to stop and restart the engine of this satellite, but that the capability would be tested in future launchings.

Previous Discoverers ejected their capsules automatically on the 17th trip around the earth, some 27 hours after launch. The signal to eject will be given from the ground Sunday, probably on the 17th pass, the Air Force said. They said it was possible, however, for the signal to be given on any pass that takes the satellite over the recovery area.

The rocket was fired up through a heavy overcast. Observers on the ground lost sight of it within seconds. Before it soared out of view, however, the rocket swung its engine back and forth in an effort to correct its trajectory.

This maneuver obviously was successful. For several hours after the launch there was some doubt as to whether the engine of the satellite's second stage had propelled it successfully into orbit.

Air Force officers later explained this was due to failure of communications between the satellite and the ground.

There was no radio information from the satellite on its first trip around the earth. Communications were restored, however, on the second pass, and this radio data, fed through computers, enabled scientists to determine that it was in a good orbit.

A future Discoverer satellite is expected to carry a small monkey into orbit, but Air Force officers said this was still some distance in the future.

U.S. Protests, Charges Cuban Trials Of 3 Americans Unfair

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States charged Saturday Cuba's government gave three Americans unfair trials and executed them primarily because they were American.

The charge was made in a protest note delivered to the Foreign Office in Havana Friday by Daniel M. Braddock, ranking U. S. diplomat in Cuba. The text was released Saturday by the State Department.

The note declared that conditions of the trials, including their speed and their "Roman circus atmosphere," had forced the conclusion "that the three United States citizens were given death rather than prison sentences because of their United States citizenship."

The three men executed in mid-October were Anthony Zarba, 28, of Sommerville, Mass.; Robert O. Fuller, 25, of Miami, Fla., and Allan D. Thompson, 36, of Queen City, Tex. They were charged with participating in an invasion of Cuba and therefore with being guilty of armed revolt against the pro-Communist regime of Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

The trials were held Oct. 12 and Oct. 15. Zarba was convicted in the first trial and Fuller and Thompson in the second. In each case the time allowed for appeal was "wholly inadequate" the protest declared, because "the appeals took place less than one hour after the verdicts in both cases.

"The summary nature of these proceedings also is illustrated by the fact that in the first trial the appeals were summarily denied after only 15 minutes of deliberation and in the second trial after only 10 minutes of deliberation," the note continued.

In the first trial, the note asserted that most of the Cubans were given prison terms although "no evidence was produced to show that Mr. Zarba was one of the leaders of the group."

In the case of Fuller and Thompson two Cubans were tried at the same time and convicted on the same charges as the Americans. Yet, the note said, the Cuban citizens were given prison sentences while the Americans were sentenced to death. This, the note said, despite the fact one of the Cubans, rather than either American, "was pointed out as being the leader of the group."

Nicaragua Blames Castro Regime For Uprising

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Government forces Saturday routed insurgent bands that had occupied two southwestern cities for 15 hours. Martial law was declared and the Castro regime in Cuba was accused of being implicated in the uprising.

A combined air-ground operation, involving about 1,000 National Guardsmen, drove the rebel forces from Jinotepe and Diriamba, about 25 miles south of Managua. Government sources said the insurgents fled, taking two Army officers as hostages.

Three soldiers were killed and one wounded in the fighting.

President Luis Somoza, in declaring martial law, charged the Cuban government with responsibility for the uprisings in cooperation with Nicaraguan agitators belonging to opposition groups.

The decree said the present revolutionary government of Cuba was attempting to impose on Central American nations regimes that supported international communism.

The rebel attacks on Jinotepe and Diriamba were carried out Friday night, two hours after the Nicaraguan Army chief, Gen. Anastasio Somoza, hurriedly returned from the United States. Gen. Somoza, a West Point graduate, is a brother of the president.

Official spokesmen said conditions in the two recaptured cities were normal and the country calm.

Saul Pett Considers The 'Ifs' Posed By Recount Of Votes

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—Let us suppose that the Republicans do get a recount in 11 states.

Let us further suppose that the recount reverses the election and Richard M. Nixon is declared president.

Wow!

It's almost too staggering to contemplate, but let's contemplate it. What would happen if the election were reversed? What recent events would have to be undone?

In just a matter of days, John F. Kennedy would go from being the youngest president-elect in history to the youngest ex-president in history, although he certainly would age considerably in the interval.

Obviously, Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson would want to reconsider their plans to resign from the Senate; Henry Cabot Lodge might have to throw away his Caribbean travel folders; Nixon, if he already has made a commitment, would have to tell that law firm he won't be available after all, and Mrs. Kennedy would no longer have to worry about the color scheme of the White House nursery.

Thousands of messages of congratulations and condolence would have to be switched overnight. West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer might still want to come over to visit, but what would Soviet Premier Khrushchev tell Nixon, since he already has told Kennedy that his victory offered hope of improved American-Soviet relations?

Thousands of election-bet losers would have to go looking for the winners and try to get their dough back, which involves millions. Las Vegas would go crazy and, clearly, the stock market would have to go down immediately since it went up immediately when Kennedy won.

Probably the group to suffer the most, outside of the Kennedy family and the 33 million Americans who voted for the Democrat, would be the political experts.

Having already determined that it was the Roman Catholic vote and the big urban vote and the labor vote that elected Jack Kennedy, they now would have to scurry around in a hurry for explanations for his defeat. Would they then agree that it was the anti-Catholic vote and big suburban vote and the farm vote which licked him?

Worst of all, there would come creeping out of the woodwork, by the millions, all the people who said they had said all along that Nixon would win. And back into the woodwork would creep, by the millions, all the people who said they had said all along that Kennedy would win.

On second thought, maybe the whole thing is too traumatic to consider.

Rioting Ends

Talk Of Plot Against De Gaulle Persists

ALGIERS (AP) — The violent anti-De Gaulle temper of rightwing European settlers dissolved Saturday behind a facade of normal conditions, but talk persisted of plotting against the Paris regime.

Street sweepers and repairmen removed most of the traces of the Armistice Day rioting, and the city went back to work as usual.

The only traces of Friday's vicious rock fights—which left an estimated total of 100 injured—were a score of boarded-up shop windows and yellow stains on the pavements where teargas grenades had been thrown. Streets were filled with shoppers, and market places had a new supply of tomatoes, after losing most of them to the rioters Friday.

Speculation in some quarters that the riots were the forerunner of a serious test of strength against President de Gaulle's government proved to be wrong—at least for the moment.

General belief was that the riots —mainly by teen-age students— were an effort to sample the attitude of law enforcement authorities, perhaps as a prelude to a more serious effort to reverse De Gaulle's controversial Algerian policy.

Many Europeans here profess to feel De Gaulle is preparing a sellout to the nationalist rebels, who have been fighting the French for six years.

Riot police, gendarmes and soldiers made more of an effort Friday at containing the rioting students than in putting them out of action through charges and mass arrests.

Most of the injured were only superficially hurt, largely through rock throwing. The rocks, tossed by students, were heaved back by riot troops, who did not use their guns. Two main rock fights went on for more than an hour before effective police action—in the form of tear gas—was taken.

In some cases, when the missile hurling ended, the students engaged antiriot forces in brisk political discussion. They assured authorities they were not against them but opposed to De Gaulle's policy of self-determination, which he himself has said will lead to an Algerian republic.

De Gaulle made this clear in a nationwide speech Nov. 4. So far he has not taken any concrete public steps to bring his newly defined plans to quick realization.

Ike Keeps Aloof From Political Postmortems

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower appears to have adopted a hands-off policy toward postelection moves by the Republican party he has led for eight years.

As he golfs daily at the secluded Augusta National Golf Club, he gives every impression of wanting to remain aloof from the political postmortems and sessions on future party policy.

The President, now 70, now seems content to leave the day-to-day political operations to the younger men who will guide the destinies of his party after he leaves the White House 66 days hence.

Since arriving Wednesday, Eisenhower has limited his political role to a terse message of congratulations to President-elect John F. Kennedy and a follow-up telegram.

In the second message, he offered to meet with Kennedy whenever his youthful successor desires and to cooperate in helping the Democrats take over the government.

The first meeting takes place Monday in the White House with Wilton B. Persons, his staff chief, representing the President. Clark M. Clifford will represent Kennedy.

Except for these two moves, Eisenhower has maintained silence of the Massachusetts senator, 43, as to the aftermath of the victory he once scornfully called "A brash young genius."

James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, disclosed Friday that Eisenhower did not know in advance about the decision of the Republican National Committee to challenge the Kennedy vote in key states.

Eisenhower had no comment on the action, Hagerty said. Then, as if to make it clear his chief has not lost touch completely with Republican planning, Hagerty volunteered the information that Eisenhower had urged Thruston B. Morton to stay on the job as Republican National Committee chairman.

Hagerty has sought to emphasize, however, that Eisenhower intends to carry on actively as President without surrendering a smidgin of power to the incoming Democrats during his remaining days in office.

Kennedy Holds 272,876 Lead In Popular Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—With unofficial returns complete from all but 1,653 of the nation's 166,066 voting units, John F. Kennedy still was leading Saturday with 50.2 per cent of the popular vote.

The totals were Kennedy 33,697,011, Vice President Richard M. Nixon 33,424,135, a difference of 272,876 votes out of more than 67 million.

Kennedy had carried 22 states with 300 electoral votes and was leading in California with 32 votes, which would give him a total of 332 electoral votes. The required majority is 269.

Nixon had carried 25 states with 183 electoral votes and led in Alaska with 3 votes for a total of 191.

Mississippi's eight electors and six of Alabama's 11 are unpledged to either candidate, and are not figured in the electoral vote totals of the candidates.

Report Capture Of Leader, Two Aides

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Troops loyal to President Ngo Dinh Diem crushed a two-day uprising in a swift counterattack Saturday. The president promptly broadcast an appeal for calm.

The radio station, one of the first objectives of the loyalist troops, also reported the capture of the insurgent military chief and two political associates. Although avowedly anti-Communist themselves, they opposed Diem's harsh methods for maintaining the security of the country against Red terrorism.

Diem had been trapped in the Presidential Palace for about 24 hours by the insurgents. He told the nation: "To protect the people's life and interests, I have ordered the insurgents to surrender, but they failed to obey the right cause. I therefore give orders to the Vietnamese armed forces to settle the matter with them."

President Ngo Dinh Diem

About 20 soldiers and civilians were reported killed in skirmishing to regain the palace. Many more were reported wounded.

Army, navy and armored units from Diem's 120,000-man armed forces stormed into Saigon before dawn to put down the rebellion.

For the second day in a row the city awakened to the sound of gunfire. Within 45 minutes the loyalists had seized the radio station, and the rebellion was collapsing.

The broadcasts said several other strategic posts in this steaming tropical capital also had been recaptured. The 3,000 paratroopers and marines who joined the rebellion Friday surrendered on all sides after putting up weak resistance, the radio said, and were quickly disarmed.

The broadcasts gave an account of the flight of the rebel leaders. Col. Nguyen Chanh Thi, the insurgent paratroop leader, made his way through encircling loyal troops in a jeep, managed to reach Saigon Airport, two miles from the Presidential Palace, and took off in a military plane.

Baby In Hospital Is Sole Survivor Of Crash Victims

AURORA, Ill. (AP)—Tommy Chidister, 11 months old, lay in a hospital crib Saturday. To him, things weren't much different than Friday—except that his family hadn't come to visit him as they had every day for a week.

Why didn't they come? His father, his mother, his two sisters, two brothers and grandmother were killed Friday night on their way home from the hospital. Their car was crushed by a truck-trailer grain hauler.

Authorities at St. Joseph's Mercy Hospital, Aurora, where Tommy is recovering from a virus infection, said other relatives are arranging to take care of him when he leaves the hospital.

An uncle, Lawrence Chidester of Elburn, said the boy would remain in the Chidester family, probably through adoption. Details were still indefinite.

Funeral services for the seven victims are being arranged. They will be at Lovila, Iowa, near Albia, home of Mrs. Dorothy Thomas, 44, the youthful grandmother who died with the Chidisters.

The others killed were Richard Chidester, 29, his wife, Evelyn, 25, and all their children except Tommy—Richard, 8; Ramona, 6; Robin, 3, and Kim, 2. There would have been another baby in a few months.

Coroner Victor Peterson of Kane County said the inquest will be continued until after the common funeral. Only identities of the dead will be certified for the record at an opening session Sunday.

The accident occurred on Illinois 47 northwest of Aurora, not far from the Chidisters' Elburn, Ill., home, as the group was returning from a visit to Tommy in the hospital.

Another car was involved in the accident with that of the Chidisters and the grain truck driven by Orin Scheer, 21, of Manhattan, Ill. John Popenhagen, 21, and his wife, 30, of Aurora, Colo., were in their car which had a glancing collision with the truck just before the truck jacknifed and crushed the Chidister car.

Mrs. Popehagen is still hospitalized in Woodstock Hospital with a back injury. Her husband and Scheer escaped without serious hurts.

How did the accident happen? Scheer told police that Popenhagen's car crushed the center-line of the road and he lost control of his truck in a frantic maneuver to avoid the crash. Popenhagen said that the truck crossed the center line. Neither driver was held.

Battered Body Of Girl Found In Forest Preserve

CHICAGO (AP) — The mauled body of a little girl, who vanished somewhere between home and church, was found Saturday in the underbrush of a forest preserve which a little more than 3½ years ago yielded the corpses of two other youngsters.

Examination showed the girl had been shot twice in the head.

The father, Edward Kowalewicz, said Gloria left home early Saturday morning to attend mass at a Southwest Side church.

The body was discovered along Willow Road near 114th Street on the far Southwest Side. The scene is a few miles from the spot where the bodies of Barbara and Patricia Grimes, 15 and 13, were found frozen and nude 3 ½ years ago.

United Fund Campaign Hits 95% Of Asking; Increase Of $5,000

Morgan county's United Fund Campaign has hit the 95% mark for distribution of funds starting in January, according to Dr. Robert Hartman, president of the United Fund Board, and Sam Pack, 1960 campaign general chairman. The goal of $85,000 has never been realized thus far but a total of $78,500 in cash and pledges has been received in campaign headquarters.

United Fund officials hope to distribute approximately 95% of the asking to each of the 12 agencies supported by the United Fund during the next 12 months. The 95 % figure is dependent upon having no shrinkage in pledges which have not been paid. "Shrinkage is the failure of persons to pay their pledges made during the campaign.

Gifts to the United Fund have increased about $5,000 during this year's campaign and about 800 more gifts were received than in 1959. The level of giving has been less than adequate, however.

Sam Pack, general chairman, said, "the number of gifts of less than $6 or more in the thing that caused us to miss the $85,000 goal. A gift of $6 provides fifty cents to each of the 12 agencies supported by the United Fund eliminates the expense of 12 separate campaigns."

The highest percentage received from any employee group was 853% by the employees of Earl Walters Plumbing and Heating Company. Fifty-eight other groups gave 100% or more toward their goal.

The Office of Vital Statistics expects about 3,000 polio cases in the United States during 1960—less than any previous year. In the four years before the Salk vaccine was discovered polio cases averaged nearly 39,000 a year.

ANNOUNCE ADVANCE IN THERMONUCLEAR FUSION PROJECT

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Researchers at a laboratory which makes hydrogen bombs announced Thursday an "encouraging advance" in the search for a means to produce useful power from slow-motion thermonuclear energy.

The group produced what appears to be an actual although short-lived controlled thermonuclear reaction.

It was an economically unprofitable and far from practical feat because the experimenters used millions of times more power to produce the reaction than they got out of it.

But the experiment yielded evidence that they caused the fusion of hydrogen atoms into helium atoms by laboratory methods rather than by bomb explosions, and that the operation produced energy in the process. Hence it was a step toward the long-sought goal of thermonuclear power by hydrogen fusion.

The work was reported before the American Physical Society at Gatlinburg, Tenn., and simultaneously announced here by the University of California's Radiation Laboratory at Livermore, Calif.

Dr. Frederic H. Coensgen, leader of the scientific team, delivered the paper at Gatlinburg.

Using a system of powerful magnets, Dr. Coensgen and associates squeezed a cubic inch of hydrogen until it reached a temperature of 35 million degrees centrigrade — 60 million degrees Fahrenheit.

At this extreme heat some of the atoms fused together, forming a light variety of helium, with some nuclear debris left over. The energy release from this reaction was measured at more than three million volts per atom.

The reaction lasted one-thousandth of a second, much longer than previous experiments, in which the interval was a few millionths of a second.

APPROVED ACT

Federal Aviation Authorities Given The Bird By Starlings

By JERRY BENNETT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON —(NEA)— The squawk of a frightened bird may make air travel safer some day—if other birds can finally be made to understand that they are flying in the face of progress.

Federal Aviation Agency experts are studying ways to discourage flocks of small birds, like starlings, which menace flights, from roosting near airports.

Broadcasting a record of bird cries has always succeeded in driving away starlings from airports, but only for short periods of time. The birds always return.

This story might seem funny if it weren't so frightening. The FAA believes a flock of migrating starlings might have been sucked into the turbo-jet engines of an Electra airliner on Oct. 4 at Boston, causing a "flame out" which resulted in the deaths of 61 persons. So the FAA takes its recordings seriously.

The novel recording is made by holding a starling upside down in front of a microphone. The squawk is recorded on tape and broadcast over a loudspeaker. The system was developed by Dr. Hubert Frings and Prof. Joseph Jumber of Pennsylvania State College ond tested in 1954.

On three consecutive evenings, federal offfcials broadcast the tape from the fourth story of the Washington Archives Building as the starlings flew in to roost. Playing time was five to 20 seconds until the birds were driven away.

The starlings avoided the fourth floor and went elsewhere around the building where the sound couldn't be heard. They stayed there for the next three months until they migrated for the summer.

But the starlings eventually returned to their usual Archives roosts. The same thing happened in Air Force experiments at Wright Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio.

The Air Force also tried to rid itself of the starlings by emitting high pitched sirens above human hearing level, beating drums and firing guns into the air. These methods worked—temporarily.

In 1958, the General Services Administration, believing that the starlings might be more frightened by the cry of a natural enemy, the hawk, switched "vocalists."

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is after the starlings, too. Dr. James S. Lindzey, an FWS official, says that the starlings, introduced here at the turn of the century, feast upon improvements in U.S. crop growing methods and there are few environmental hazards to bother them. Therefore, the starling is not wanted on farmland either.

All agencies worried about the starling might hear the plight of the Navy, which has its own bird problems.

STARLINGS: Airborne hazard.

What the starling threatens to do to some flights around the country, the gooney bird has done to flights on Midway Island in the Pacific.

In one year, 538 Navy aircraft were involved in collisions with gooney birds, (albatrosses), which inflicted damage totalling more than $156,000 and endangering persons on the planes.

So the Navy tried to frighten the birds off with weird noises, smoke them out and steal their eggs. When these methods didn't work, the sailors tried to "club" them. Finally they spent $110,000 to level the dunes near the runways, the gooney birds' takeoff point. They also provided similar sites on another island to attract the birds there.

At last report, the problem on Midway has been reduced substantially—but it, too, has not been eliminated entirely.

Honest Mail Order Courses Do Pay Off In Real Rewards

By WARD CANNEL
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — "Help wanted." . . . "Act now." . . . Earn up to $15,000 a year." . . . "Learn the easy way." . . . "You may be qualified to enroll."

Recognize this pitch? It's the call of the wild correspondence school —just about every sign of misrepresentation possible in the mail order education business that is sweeping the U. S. today, according to the National Home Study Council.

But how wide is the gap between phony and real is this revolution in American education?

The Home Study Council says that reputable correspondence schools don't advertise under "Help Wanted," don't urge immediate action, don't guarantee employment or big income leaps, don't imply that practically anybody is qualified to enroll, and certainly don't claim learning is easy.

But a recent cross-section survey of home-study alumni reveals that, in general, students got what they wanted from their courses, won promotion or found better jobs and increased their earnings by an average of $22.50 weekly.

It doesn't add up to $15,000 a year, of course (although there are cases where it did). Nevertheless, Popular Science magazine, which ran the survey, reports that a whooping 85 per cent of the alumni asked said they would take correspondence courses again if they had it to do over.

So successful is home study (and sa faithful to its promise in most cases) that the enrollment in private correspondence schools alone has doubled in the past decade until it is climbing toward the two million mark today.

In addition, there are the other, many students eagerly waiting for mail from schools run by the armed forces, business firms, trade associations and religious organizations.

Nine reputable schools opened since the end of World War II, for example, are doing a terrific business in mail-teaching of interior decoration, computing machine operation, electronics, drawing, dressmaking, heavy equipment operation, locksmithing, landscaping and upholstering.

Today, nearly one certified public accountant in four got there via correspondence training. Law, engineering architecture are gaining in popularity. A complete list of courses available staggers the mind.

So does total school income. Private outfits alone make better than $100 million yearly. With their students paying the full cost of the education no endowment is necessary to keep the schools running. Consequently, more university extension programs are turning to mail courses.

Now, behing the home study boom lies a wonderfully naive philosophy, namely: if you really want to learn, you don't need monitors, gimmicks, gadgets or visual aids. Only books, work sheets and instructions. And so, a full mail course leading to a valuable skill may cost up to $1,000. One year in college might cost twice that.

Proof of the theory is the typical mail student today. He's 27, a high school graduate, married, a father, a homeowner. He wants education for a richer life. Or else he's in his 60's looking forward to retirement. The three most popular course categories, therefore, are vocational, religious and home hobby.

One mail school, Famous Artists, offer another dimension. Be an artist, they hint, and even if you don't want to use it to make a living or find self fulfillment, you'll get invited to many more parties.

THE DEFENSE ATTACKS. Spencer Tracy, as the biting, sarcastic attorney for the defense in the famous "Monkey trial of 1925," opens his attack while the flowery orator, played by Fredric March, smugly awaits his turn. "Inherit the Wind," produced and directed by Stanley Kramer, will open Friday at the New Frisina Times Theatre.

Paraplegic Kills Invalid Wife, Takes Own Life

WEST LONG BRANCH, N. J. (AP)—The body of John Vonella, 42, a paraplegic sought in the suspected mercy killing of his wife, was found Saturday in nearby New Shrewsbury.

New Shrewsbury Police Chief James A. Herring said Vonella had apparently taken poison. The body was found in Vonella's specially equipped car in a wooded area. A gun was found on the front seat.

His wife, Corrine, 41, a multiple sclerosis victim, was shot and killed with a single bullet in the back of her head. Her body, propped in a wheelchair, was found Friday night in the couple's home here.

Vonella has been a paraplegic since he fell from a scaffold while painting his house in 1948.

The body of Mrs. Vonella, who contracted multiple sclerosis a year ago, was found by her brother, Sal Ripandelli. He told police he went to his sister's house after Vonella stopped at his home around 7 p.m., left a stack of personal papers, and hurried off before he could be questioned. Ripandelli described Vonella as "very nervous."

The papers included the family mortgage, discharge papers and other personal belongings.

The couple's son, John, 14, was at a dance at the nearby community center.

Small-fry cooks: they'll enjoy cutting rounds out of a sheet of sponge cake, using cookie cutters. Then the rounds may be frosted and decorated. The raggle-taggle ends of cake may be used instead of bread in a pudding, but the regular amount of sugar will probably have to be decreased.

Chicken stock on hand? Team with tomato juice and heat, seasoning with salt and freshly ground black pepper. Nice garnished with a thin slice of lemon. The lemon can be fancied up by inserting whole cloves around the edges of the slices.

When you are planning to use asparagus (from cans or jars) as the filling for rolled sandwiches, it's a good idea to marinate the spears in French dressing. Drain the asparagus well before the buttered bread is rolled around them.

Reviewer Claims Quartet Thrills Local Audience

by William Hilbrink

Thursday evening in Jones Chapel, Illinois College presented in concert, the Hungarian Quartet, which is considered by many to be one of the finest ensembles in the world today. As a string quartet-in-residence at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles, this unique ensemble retains its favor on the five continents of the world.

Responding to the overwhelming applause of one of the largest and most appreciative audiences at these concerts, Messrs. Szekely, Kuttner, Koromzay and Magyar crowned their stunning performance of works by Haydn, Beethoven and Bartok with a delightfully captivating performance of the Finale of Mozart's Quartet in G Major, K. 387.

Few realized perhaps that this quartet possesses four instruments of enormous value. The two violins were made by Stradivari and Petrus Guarneri, in 1718 and 1704, respectively. The viola is a Michele Decanet dated 1766 and the cello is a beautiful example of G. B. Gabrielli made in 1751. The "Michelangelo" Strad, played by Mr. Szekely, although proportionately small, possesses a warm, intimate tonal quality.

Having struggled through the Fifth Bartok Quartet himself, this writer acknowledges the almost insurmountable difficulties presented to four musicians, each apparently playing a completely different piece of music. Yet, the almost unbelievable performance proved to hundreds of witnesses that it was indeed a "united whole."

Perhaps the most outstanding aspect of the concert was the Quartet's ability to transcend the "materialistic" and to communicate the very essence of the emotional and spiritual qualities of the composer's work. Indeed, one becomes quite unaware of meter in terms of two, three or four beats per measure, or of melody or harmony in terms of specific tonal patterns. This then, is the ultimate height of truly great artistic merit; to "lead us to the high sierras of human spirit."

Illinois College and its Music Committee can be proud for having provided such a rewarding experience to so many in the Jacksonville area.

You can stretch creamed oysters by adding a can of sliced mushrooms —and the combination will taste good. Some of the mushroom liquid may be substituted for milk in making the sauce.

Saute chicken livers and make a thin brown gravy; serve with cooked thin spaghetti or linguine (flat strands of pasta) and lots of grated Parmesan or Romano cheese.

by E. W. BROWN

In case you haven't heard, beards are back. And so are mustaches, sideburns, and all the other variations of hair men shade their faces with. Right now, face-fuzz is sweeping the British Isles. And the funny part of it is the fuzz isn't even real. Hundreds of young Englishers are combing the warehouses of theatrical makeup suppliers for phony face-hair. They put it on for what they call "evening wear." What started the beard boom, nobody knows. The buyers themselves say a beard makes them "feel good." They don't sprout real ones 'cause they say their bosses would object. But apparently the gals don't. In fact, they claim young British femmes really go for the fuzz. Maybe the guys and gals of jolly old England have been seeing too many whiskered gents in the American westerns they see on TV. Any way you look at it, it's a ticklish business.

In Nebraska, a party by the name of Obedience Perfect paid a $15 traffic fine for failing to yield the right-of-way. Straying from the path?

CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE BEGINS

Mrs. Verne Anderson, in charge of the Christmas Seal Campaign in Morgan county, sells the first sheet of the 1960 Seals to Tom Rusinek, executive secretary of the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce. The traditional Seals will arrive in homes throughout the nation Monday, Nov. 14. Mrs. Anderson said that 7,700 sheets of Christmas Seals were mailed in Morgan county.

As has been the case in Morgan county, the Seal Campaign is carried on entirely by mail. There is no door to door canvass.

It is because of the help of many individuals, groups and business organizations that the Christmas Seal Campaign is accomplished with a degree of success. Many volunteers came several evenings and a total of many hours were spent preparing the thousands of envelopes for the post office department. Members of the Morgan County Salon 320, 8 and 40 who helped were Mrs. Gwen Boyd, Miss Mildred Dugan of Beardstown; Mrs. Lorene Cruzan, Mrs. Mary Frances Cruzan, Mrs. Evelyn Cruzan, Mrs. Helen Winner, Mrs. Lillie Scheil, Mrs. Irene Caldwell Mrs. Birdie Spaulding, Mrs. Edna Daly and Mrs. Bernice Petefish.

The 1960 seal is again a duplex affair having been designed by Philip Richard Costigan who now does free-lance designing for the decorating field. His favorite subjects are flowers and designs from nature. Mr. Costigan, a native of England, studied in both England and France and is now permanently located in the state of Pennsylvania. He became interested in designing a seal when he frequented clinics for tubular patients in Reading, Pa. when he accompanied his uncle who contracted TB.

The 1960 Seal conveys all the high spirits and innocence of young singers in their red and green costumes. These child carollers are the very essence of Christmas.

The Christmas Seal contribution local tuberculosis association, serves through the program of the which was organized in Morgan county back in 1907. The program of the TB Association is established to serve all citizens of the community.

TRY A WANT AD

Is It A Space Ship? A Plane? No. It's A Musical Instrument

By GENE SHUMATE
Written For NEA

WASHINGTON—(NEA)— Music lovers will soon reap some side benefits from defense and electronic research.

While working on vital electronic and space research projects for the government, a small Fairfax, Va., firm developed two new musical instruments for mass production.

Colors are set to music by one called Rhythm-Scope. The other, labeled a Vienna Electronic Organ by workers on the project, uses light energy and parts from electronic computers to reproduce sounds better and cheaper in a smaller organ.

The first Rhythm-Scope model, which could be described as a musical kaleidoscope, is in production. Some 1,500 have been ordered for a try-out in California.

If it catches on, you might look up one day at an instrument, which resembles a TV set, splashing beautiful and ever-changing color patterns on a screen to fit the mood of the music.

The colors are recorded on computer parts and respond to musical impulses. Repetition of patterns is impossible.

Inside the Rhythm-Scope is a hi-fi tape recorder, mirrors and whirring metal discs. It can be rigged to flash lyrics for singalongs and even commercials. It's practical, the inventors say, for companies to prepare the tapes with product plugs enclosed.

Richard E. Williams, 34, who is the founder of Scope, Inc., the company behind both instruments, got the idea for the organ when he was a musician, composer and arranger looking for a lighter instrument years ago.

To operate it, a player touches the keys, setting off light impulses. These pass through small plastic discs on which all possible notes, chords and stops are recorded.

Then the light images are translated from the discs into electrical energy which is then changed into sound waves and sent out through the speaker.

Anything a conventional organ can do, this one can do better, the inventors say.

It's even possible to have other instrument sounds on the organ's discs so that one organist theoretically could "play an entire orchestra."

Scope expects to turn out 7,000 such organs with easily replacable or repairable parts, in the first year.

Despite Scope's interest in these instruments, "We're primarily in defense research," Jonathan J. Broom, the company's financial officer, says.

"These two instruments were just extras. We made the Rhythm-Scope for a plaything. It laid around in our laboratory for 18 months before we realized that we could sell it."

Broom considers the Rhythm-Scope and the organ as "research fall-out" from the company's basic work.

Space Scientists Come Down To Earth With Helpful Advice

By WARD CANNEL
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Want your house completely fireproofed in a matter of hours? How about a year's fuel supply for your car in a container no bigger than a silver dollar? Or a year-round wardrobe that can't wear out?

Things like these are on the near horizon because space research is finally coming down to earth. So, if they'll just quit messing around with bombs, the next few years should bring:

● Pinpoint weather predictability by means of earth satellites which can track large weather areas.

The Weather Bureau says improved predictions could save at least 1,000 American lives and $145 million yearly. General Electric's Space Vehicle Department says a two-satellite forecasting system could be put into effect almost immediately. Once the moons were up, yearly maintenance would run about $10 million

● Worldwide communication system that can work efficiently regardless of sunspots, storms or geographical obstacles.

Active satellite Courier, launched early in October, can receive 68,000 words per minute, remember them as it races through space to a receiving station thousands of miles away. The Army Signal Corps plan to have a three - satellite, instantaneous-communication system aloft by 1962. If all goes well, there should be a public utility satellite system soon after.

● Space lighthouse for ships, planes, submarines which can broadcast their positions as they circle the earth.

According to lighthouse engineers at Johns Hopkins University, it is the "most remarkable advance in navigation" since long range radio (Loran) was developed in World War II. Unofficial indications: navigators can fix their positions within a tenth of a mile.

● Lightweight materials that can withstand both deepfreeze and hellfire temperatures.

From the need for such materials in missile nosecones has already come the pyroceram skillet which can go from the freezer in to a 600-degree oven without cracking. Now a plastic has been developed that can withstand 15,000 degrees—the heat on the sun's surface. A home application might well be easy, cheap fire proofing.

We know, engineers say, that space is full of minerals. A 200-foot asteroid (a tiny planet which abounds in space) composed largely of iron could be mined for about $1 billion worth of ore.

● More efficient, cheaper, cleaner —above all, smaller, power sources.

Solar energy is still a long way off. Science says the fuel cell is much closer at hand. The cell is about the size of a silver dollar. By chemical reaction and a tiny fuel supply, it produces dependable, continuous electrical energy. The cell is noiseless, ordorless, rechargable, simple and economical— everything automobile design is not.

At least seven methods of power supply are under study. Another promising way appears to be through magnetohydrodynamics—the use of gases passing through magnetic fields. Prognosis: up to 15 per cent more electricity with no moving parts.

● Almost too big to conjure with, developments in medicine and biology.

Pharmacologists predict space-age drugs to give you a 48-hour sleep—a week's supply at one time. Fibers being grown in laboratories today are lighter and stronger than anything now known, capable of making parachutes to withstand the searing temperatures of reentry or everyday wear and tear. And biologists are making great strides in keeping men functioning well on amazingly small amounts of food and liquid.

Under ideal, sealed conditions, no human energy is lost so no new supply is needed— a big saving in grocery bills.

Your Ship Needs Decorating? See Joan . . .

She Designs Nautical Glamour Or A Seaworthy Hull

By Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Hand her a drawing board and stand back, sailor, for this gal will design a seaworthy hull for your new ship or dream up crew quarters both attractive and comfortable.

She is Joan Ten Hoopen, a Cleveland, Ohio, miss who has turned her earlier art training into practical channels far removed from oils and water colors on canvas.

Her products, to borrow a phrase, go down to the sea in ships. Actually hulls Miss Ten Hoopen has designed for ships she has decorated ply the Great Lakes.

Her marine career, unique for a woman, began in 1951 after graduation from the Cleveland Institute of Art. Ships fascinated her and her bent led her to the engineering department of American Ship Building Co. She is widely known for her engineering skill on the hulls of some of the largest ships to be turned out by American Ship's various yards.

At American she served as project leader in the design for construction of two Navy LST's, the Wood and Lorain Counties. Miss Ten Hoopen supervised the project's draftsmen; in fact, she trained junior draftsmen and field engineers. During sea trials and naval parleys which preceded acceptance of the ship by the navy, she represented the company.

Joan Ten Hoopen

She knows the hull works.

These responsibilities were a reflection of the firm's faith in her knowledge of ship structural layout and design.

Once she had achieved distinction in this field, Miss Ten Hoopen looked around for other worlds to conquer.

At art school interior decoration had always been one of her favorite studies. Her work with and on ships convinced her that decor, outfitting and comfort provided for passengers and crew alike left much to be desired.

Halle Bros. department store lent a willing ear to her plans to set up a new marine department. To it she brought her knowledge of ships, particularly what was feasible from an engineering standpoint, and started work on her new love—interior decoration of ships.

Two recent jobs attest to the excellence of her decorating skill. She was approached by the Huron Portland Cement Co. to decorate two ships of their fleet, the S. T. Cropo and the J. W. Boardman. The transformation has put the Cropo in the luxury-furnished class of Great Lakes vessels.

Miss Ten Hoopen's ability extends also to the mechanical. She knows which end of the wrench to use. A short time ago her sports car broke down while she was en route home. Instead of the usual helpless I'm-a-woman-and--I-don't-know-about-such things, she unlimbered a tool kit, slid under the car and made repairs.

Miss Ten Hoopen was noncommittal on whether she or her husband tackles the do-it-yourself projects around their home. She's married to Robert Boeddener, an employee of the Formed Steel Tube Institute.

Mr. Boeddener is interested in ships, too—who wouldn't be with a wife like his—but his absorption is more that of the man who watches the ships go by.

B-58 Might Be Forerunner Of Supersonic Travel By Air

By JERRY BENNETT
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (NEA)—The B-58 Hustler, the nation's first supersonic bomber, may evolve into the first faster-than-sound commercial airliner.

Interest in adapting the 1,300 mph military plane for commercial use stems from reports that the Russians may soon provide supersonic jet passenger service. The B-58 is manufactured here by the Convair Division of General Dynamics Corp.

Air Force intelligence reports indicate that the Soviets are developing a supersonic transport. Aviation experts fear that Russian progress in this area could offer stiff competition to U.S. airlines unless they have similar planes.

Convair officials, however, maintain that the Hustler gives the U.S. a head start. They point out that the 160,000 pound, needle nose B-58 is the first plane larger than a fighter to travel at twice the speed of sound and withstand intense heat-producing wind friction.

A new heat resistant aluminum skin covers 90 per cent of the large delta wing and portions of the fuselage. It withstands heat of more than 260 degrees Fahrenheit without weakening.

Using the B-58's structural and engineering concepts, Convair engineers believe that by 1965 they could have a transport ready to fly 60 to 70 passengers on three-hour trans-Atlantic hops.

Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration plan to use the B-58 to study problems of supersonic commercial flight. Problems include air traffic control, sound barrier noise and flight scheduling. No date has been set for the NASA tests at Edwards AFB, Calif.

Not everyone, however, agrees that modifying the Hustler is the best way to win the supersonic transport race. Some of our aviation experts favor the B-70 bomber being developed by North American Aviation, Inc.

For economic reasons, the Administration recently cut the B-70 production program from 60 planes to a pair of test prototypes. Proponents of the B-70 favor the bomber for commercial use because it could travel 2,000 mph and be modified to hold more than 100 passengers. The first B-70 bomber test flight is scheduled for 1963.

Which plane eventually becomes the first U.S. supersonic jet passenger ship will depend on Uncle Sam. Officials of both Convair and North American say that the conversion project would require government financial aid. Cost estimates range from 75 million to one billion dollars.

THIS FOUR-ENGINE, turbo jet B-58 bomber costs $9½ million. Operated by a three-man crew, this 97-foot plane can fly as high as 50,000 feet and maneuver effectively at tree-top level at 600 mph. Reportedly, it needs only one refueling to go from th U.S. to the heart of Russia.

New Interest Here in Nazism Follows West German Rise

By WARD CANNELL
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK —(NEA)— A few curious straws in the wind:

● A U.S. public school watchdog organization appears to be winning the battle to get new textbooks to devote more space to Nazi Germany and Hitler's atrocities.

● A spot check of publishers shows eight new books on the topic on sale or ready for publication. One, the life story of Hitler, is part of a popular children's series.

● On the lecture circuit until recently, Russia was the subject in demand. Today, one of the biggest lecturers reports, the trend is to Nazism and Hitler.

Why? And why now, 15 years after Nazi Germany's defeat

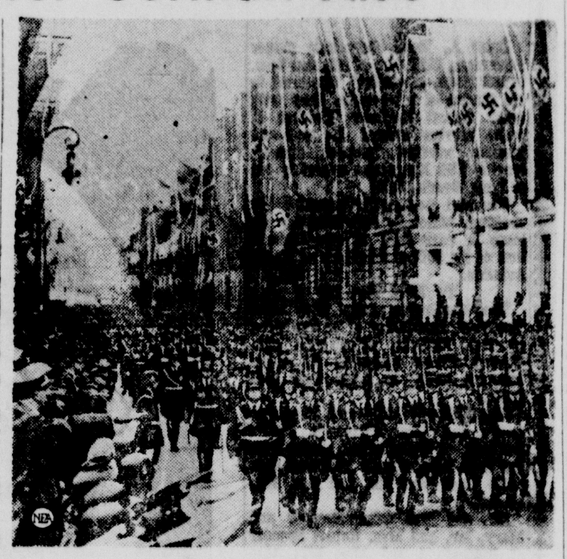
Nobody seems to have a definite answer. But according to William L. Shirer, whose mammoth new $10 history, "The Rise and Fall of the Third Reich," is already assured a place on the best-seller list:

"Perhaps the real significance of awakened interest in Hitler's Germany is a healthy change in American thinking.

"Since the end of World War II, our attitude has been that the Hitler regime was an 'unfortunate incident' in German history—and better left unspoken.

"Well, it's best we grow up about these things."

Shirer, in case you've forgotten, is the dean of American correspondents who covered Germany from the mid-1920's and alerted the world to the building of World War II. Although his history ends with the trial of war criminals after the war, he speaks of his recent research in Western Europe and from his vast correspondence with informed sources throughout the world.



Do you remember this?

The U.S., according to Shirer, is about to discover:

● Nazism is far from dead. Former party members not only hold jobs in the present German government, but also in business and universities. Their Nazi affiliation, far from being a hindrance, helps to get them ahead.

● At least 30 neo-Nazi organizations are in full bloom in West Germany today—with all the trappings; racism, anti-democracy, secrecy and underground networks extending to Argentina, the United Arab Republic and, of course, East Germany.

● What little change of heart exists in West Germany is to be seen in Berlin. But it is not representative of the rest of the country and, in fact, anything about Berlin has always been suspect elsewhere.

Shirer holds that an election outside the major cities would put the Nazis back into office—if the police would let them campaign.

Antiquarian Club Enjoys Program On Quilt Making

The Jacksonville Antiquarian Club met in November at the home of Crit Haneline, 1021 West State Street. Wyman Sooy, president, presided over the business meeting. Following this Mrs. Sooy presented a most interesting and informative paper "Quilts and the Stories They Tell."

A display of quilts brings to mind scenes of long ago, the prim clean bedrooms of New England, the home of the southern planter, the log cabin of the frontier and the wagon schooner traveling into a new country.

Patchwork has been an art practiced since the first cloth was woven. Humble maids, austere nuns, grand dames and stately queens shared in the quilter's art. Quilts are the results of two kinds of needlework, one, piecing together of various fabrics; two, the laying of a patch of one kind on another which is known as applique. The Egyptians and Israelites practiced this art. The most ancient patchwork is a gazelle hide in the museum at Cairo which served as a canopy for an Egyptian queen in 960 B.C.

Prior to the 11th century there was no reference to quilting and patchwork in western Europe. The Crusaders brought back fine stuffs of every kind and specimens of applique hangings and garments from Syria where natives had wrought for centuries the identical work carried into Palestine from Egypt in Biblical times by the Hebrews and the Phoenicians.

Nowhere has the quilt played so distinct and characteristic a part as in America. Patchwork and quilting on the American continent is due entirely to the English and Dutch settlers. There is no evidence that the Spanish and French colonists made use of it. The Spanish in the south country did not need quilts and the French settlers sought protection under furs. In the early days, poorly heated houses made necessary an adequate supply of bedding.

Quilt making is an antique that has never died out, and the vogue for quilts today is due to a deep interest in all things historically expressive of our national background and growth. Unusual is the native family that does not possess one ancient quilt.

New York City and Brooklyn museums have gathered a remarkable collection. The Metropolitan has a quilt of superlative beauty, a mosaic of blue and white medallions—much like the rose garden. Quilts of Revolutionary times hardly exist.

The making of quilts in the early days was no small task as the old quilts measured 10 feet 3 inches square and were designed for the four poster beds, 6 feet wide. When women ceased to depend on the rag bag, then elaborate quilts came. One Jane Long made a quilt of 38,000 pieces. A good quilter was as popular as a good bridge player of today. Many quilts drew their inspirations from old songs.

The early settlers in Virginia and the Carolinas were English of the better class and had landed properties. Here quilts were made in great numbers.

Quilt making was highly developed by 1750 and can be classified thus: Colonial years—from early days to Revolution; Empire period — new classic influence; Pioneer days—began with the days of Boone's expedition into Kentucky; Civil War—50's and 60's; Centennial decade—beginning with Philadelphia celebration in 1876.

Many beautiful quilt blocks of the different periods were shown. Two very beautiful coverlets, a lovely quilt of silk, and a flower garden quilt, all owned by Mrs. Roy Baker, were shown. The silk quilt was made by Mrs. Baker's great grandmother. A beautiful Paisley shawl and coverlet owned by Mrs. Mayme Jones, and a child's alphabet quilt owned by Miss Rose Ranson were shown. The alphabet quilt was made by Miss Ranson's grandmother.

It's a good idea to keep whole allspice as well as the ground variety on your kitchen shelves. A few of the whole spice help flavor when they are added to stock or stew.

Close Presidential Elections

By Dr. Clarence P. McClelland

A good deal has been said during the past week about the closeness of last Tuesday's presidential election. "Razor-edge" has been used to characterize Kennedy's victory over Nixon, especially in the popular vote.

However, there have been a number of other close presidential elections in our history. In 12 of them, winning candidates failed to receive popular majorities. They were John Quincy Adams, Poke, Taylor, Buchanan, Lincoln, Hayes, Garfield, Cleveland, (twice), Harrison, Wilson, (twice), and Truman.

For example, take the election of 1918. Wilson was running for a second term. By the way, the great slogan of his party was "He Kept Us Out of War." In this fall's campaign the Republicans used the same slogan, applying it to Eisenhower.

On election night in 1916 everyone went to bed convinced that Hughes had won. He would have been elected if it had not been for what had happened in California during the campaign.

California had 13 electoral votes. The final count gave Wilson the popular majority of about 500,000 votes and 277 electoral votes. Hughes received 254. The vote in California was close, but Wilson carried the state because Hughes had snubbed his rival for the nomination, Hiram Johnson. Deducting California's 13 electoral votes from Wilson's 277 and adding it to Hughes' total of 254, the result would have been Hughes 267; Wilson 264.

Another close election was in 1884. Cleveland's popular vote was 4,874,986; Harrison 4,851,981. Cleveland carried New York by about 1100 votes. If 600 more men had voted for Blaine instead of for Cleveland, Blaine would have been elected. Cleveland's electoral vote was 219; Blaine's 182. If Blaine had carried New York State his electoral vote would have been 218; Cleveland 183.

The election of 1876 was very close indeed and ended scandalously. Hayes, the Republican candidate, received 4,036,298. Tilden, his opponent, received 4,300,590. Neither had a majority of the electoral votes. Tilden received 184, Hayes 185, but 20 of Hayes' votes were in doubt because they had come from carpet-bagger governments in Florida, Louisiana, and South Carolina. The constitution provides that the electoral votes must be counted in the presence of both Houses of Congress. The Republican controlled Senate and the Democratic controlled House could not agree as to just how these votes should be counted, but finally did agree to leave the decision to a bipartisan commission made up of seven members from each party and one independent. However, before the commission could act the independent died and a Republican substituted. Hayes was declared elected by a vote of eight to seven.

The presidential figures in 1860, just one hundred years ago, showed that Lincoln's three opponents, Douglas, Breckenridge and Bell, polled a million more votes than he, and that in 10 states he failed to receive a single popular vote. In Illinois Breckenridge and Bell polled 48% of the popular vote; in Indiana 48%, and in Pennsylvania 47%. But Lincoln got his vote in the right states. His total electoral vote was 180 or 59.41%. In 1864, while the popular vote was rather close, Lincoln received 90.99% of the electoral votes from 22 states of the Union; McClellan 9.01% from three states.

In the 1960 election, the popular vote is close with Kennedy leading by a slight margin, and there are Republican cries of "fraud" and demands for a recount particularly in Illinois and Missouri. But it is extremely doubtful whether there will be any substantial change in the results so far reported.

WRECKS HAVOC

DECATUR, Tenn. (AP) — A motorist plowed up Tom Wade's flower garden, trimmed J. T. Tarpley's hedge and left a third of Decatur without water. It happened when he lost control of his car, slammed through the two yards and crashed into a fireplug, sending a geyser into the air. With true southern hospitality, townspeople pushed the car to a garage for minor repairs.

The first college in the United States to offer the laboratory method of teaching chemistry as a part of its regular curriculum was Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. That was in the 1830s.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP)—With the supply curtailed last week because of election day, the butcher hog market closed as much as 50 cents higher and at the highest peak since Oct. 13.

On Friday, a few 195-215 lb weights brought the $18.50 top as the supply dropped to a small 3,500 head. Receipts for the week were 3,400 head, off 2,500 from the previous week.

Slaughter steers grading choice and prime and scaling 1,350-1,600 lbs were as much as $2 higher at one time this week, making it the broadest advance since March 1959. However, the market closed generally 75 cents to $1.50 higher on slaughter classes.

The strength was ascribed mainly to a supply 25 per cent smaller here than last week and a decline of 20 per cent for the 12 major markets. Offerings were the lightest since August for the 12 markets and since April at Chicago.

After starting the week mostly 50 cents lower and at the lowest level in 14 years, the market for slaughter lambs turned strong and closed steady to 50 cents higher. Buyers said the firming influence was an improved market for lamb carcasses in the wholesale trade.

CHICAGO (AP) — (USDA) — Following is a summary of the hog, cattle and sheep markets for the week:

Hogs — compared Friday last week—barrows and gilts 50 higher, sows steady to 25 lower. Mixed No. 1 and 2 and mixed No. 1, 2 and 3 190-240 lb barrows and gilts closed 18.00-18.35. New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market advanced strongly this week as Wall Street digested various implications of Sen. John F. Kennedy's election as president.

In the course of its advance, the market hurdled the formidable technical barrier represented by the figure 600 in the Dow Jones industrial average.

The week's action refuted predictions of many analysts that the election of Kennedy would result in a sharp, though possibly temporary market decline. In the four-day market week, cut short by the election day holiday, stocks advanced every session except the closing one when some normal profit taking occurred.

It was the third straight week on the upside for stocks. The Friday decline placed a period after seven straight daily gains in the Associated Press average.

Two widely cited reasons were given for the rise: 1. The narrowness of Kennedy's victory was an insurance against sweeping reforms of a 'New Deal' type which might be punitive to business; and 2. The new administration was expected to spend generously on defense and take measures to aid housing, school building, the sale of drugs, as well as to stimulate business through lower interest rates.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 12.54 to 608.61. It cleared the 600 level on the day after election as the prolonged vote count showed that Kennedy, while successful, had a thinner and thinner margin. Wall Street, traditionally Republican, was reassured by this.

The AP 60-stock average rose .40 to 214.60.

Volume in the reduced trading week was 13.74 million shares compared with 13.46 million in the previous five-session week. The week's daily average trading was 3.43 million shares, the largest since the week ended June 25 when it was 3.65 million shares.

The most active issue this week on the American Stock Exchange was Sapphire Petroleum, up ¼ at 11-16 on 173,500 shares.

Bond prices traveled an unspectacular path this holiday week almost as though there had been no election.

U.S. government issues continued to slide backward while corporate prices maintained a mixed course with only minor deviations. Both tones were exactly the same as the previous week.

The election did produce on Wednesday the first gain by Treasury securities in seven sessions. But the small advance was offset by losses during the other two sessions of the week, shortened by election and Veterans Day suspensions.

Industrials posted their best one-week gain in 12 weeks to feature corporate trading. The other moves on the AP index were about as small as they could be with rails up and utilities and high grade investment issues down. Foreign bonds were unchanged.

Volume of corporate trading on the New York Stock Exchange fell to $22.43 million par value for four sessions from $25.10 million the previous full week. The daily average topped $5.50 from about $5 the preceding week.

MOST GRAINS LOSE IN WEEK'S TRADING

By GIL MAYO
AP Business News Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Price swings in the grain futures market were somewhat broader than usual this week in generally heavy trading but the trend was downward and losses in most contracts ran to more than two cents a bushel.

At the end of the week, corn, oats and rye were at their lowest levels of the season and in the cash market corn was selling at an 18-year low. The cash trade reported sales as low as $1.01 a bushel, off about 15 cents from a year ago.

There was not a plus sign in the list but old crop wheat deliveries withstood the pressure best and posted only fractional setbacks.

Wheat was ¼-2⅜ cents a bushel lower than a week ago, December $1.99⅞-2.00; corn 1-1⅞ lower, December $1.05½-⅝; oats 2-3¼ lower, December 59⅞-¾; $1.13⅜-½; soybeans 1¼-2¼ lower, November $2.16¼-⅛.

As for the past several months, soybeans attracted by far the major trade interest and accounted for more than half the total. The open interest in that commodity climbed to a record high of more than 203 million bushels. That total was about 2½ times the open interest in wheat, the next most active commodity on the board.

The market appeared to have reacted only briefly and mildly to the presidential election. While a few brokers viewed the election result as mildly bullish, most of them pointed out the unlikelihood of any significant change in farm law that could be applied before the 1962 crops.

Chief influence of the week was a fairly good commercial demand for wheat and a slackening demand elsewhere. Before the government's November crop report was issued on Thursday, the trade appeared to have expected a somewhat bearish prediction of soybean yield. However, it was surprisingly low at about 560 million bushels and prices rallied on Friday although it was restrained from time to time by profit taking.

The estimate of a record high corn yield came as no particular surprise to major brokers who had said available stocks already were far too burdensome to offer any hope of a stronger price trend in that grain for some time.

Battered Body Of Girl Found In Forest Preserve

The driver of a laundry truck—Harry Lindeman, 40, was seated at a roadside table in Palos Woods when he spied the child's body sprawled in a thicket, her head and face bloodied and disfigured.

Lindeman told police her dress was pulled up about her waist and her shoes and socks were missing. The body was removed to the County Morgue for detailed examination after the father made positive identification.

The discovery of the body recalled still another episode of violent death in which two young brothers and a teen-age friend, figured. Then, a salesman, lunching at a picnic table in a northwest side preserve Oct. 18, 1955, was the first to spot the grisly scene.

The victims were John Schuessler, 13; his brother, Anton, 11, and their companion, Robert Peterson, 14.

Young Gloria was the ninth Chicago area child to meet violent death in the last five years. Only one of these cases apparently has been solved.

Other young victims of the recent past years were:

Judith Mae Anderson, 16: Her dismembered body was found in September 1957 wedged into two cans floating in a North Side harbor.

Betsy Benham, 5, found in a shallow grave near her suburban Wheeling home last July 30: Charged with her murder is Harold Dalibozak, 14, a runaway from jail.

Ronald Martin, 13, whose body was found just two weeks ago in a sandpile at a Southwest Side construction site. Evidence tended to bear out a theory that the boy had been drinking prior to his death.

The plane was forced down by two fighter aircraft in central Viet Nam near Nhatrang.

There was no word on whether Thi would be returned to Saigon or held at Nhatrang.

Two civilian members of the revolutionary committee were arrested near the border of Cambodia attempting to flee into that neutralist country. They were Phan Kac Suu and Pahn Quang Dan.

Suu is a deputy in the National Assembly and leader of the United Peoples Front—a group formed by the revolutionists. Dan, an American-trained physician who worked among Saigon's poor, was political counselor of the rebels, although he reportedly hesitated at first to join their abortive coup.

The rebels were basically friendly to the West. Their complaints centered around members of Diem's family, who hold high positions in the government and shun outside counsel. Thus embittered by their political isolation, they also opposed the stiff methods adopted by Diem to battle growing Communist terrorism supported by infiltrators from North Viet Nam.

KENNEDY TO MEET BRAZIL'S PRESIDENT

election by some two million votes out of a total of 12 million. Salinger said with a smile that his boss told Dantas: "My margin was somewhat smaller."

Kennedy won over Vice President Richard M. Nixon by a popular vote of around 300,000 out of a total of 67 million.

While Kennedy was on the phone with 15 or 20 Democratic leaders around the country Saturday morning, Salinger said that there was no discussion of word that the high command of the Republican National Committee wants a recount in 11 states.

Salinger said Nixon had said he wasn't interested in pursuing the matter and that "pretty well disposed of it."

The conversations with Democratic leaders, Salinger said, were mostly to thank them for their work for the Democratic ticket and "in some cases to ask them to perform certain tasks which he will make public later."

He said he wasn't talking about Cabinet or other appointments but about studies to be undertaken.

Kennedy expects to consult next week with Clark Clifford, his chief liaison man with the Eisenhower administration; Ricard Neustadt, Columbia University professor who has made a study of transitions between presidencies; and Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, who is looking into the Defense Department setup for Kennedy. Symington is a former Air Force secretary.

Salinger said there will be other appointments during the week.

Kennedy is flying to Texas Wednesday to spend the night and the next day with Vice President-elect Lyndon B. Johnson at the LBJ Ranch at Johnson City. He will fly back here Thursday night.

Johnson will stop in Williamsburg en route to Paris where he will attend the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's parliamentarians conference Nov. 20.

Two Collisions Occur At City Intersections

Two accidents were reported to Jacksonville police officials Saturday afternoon. No persons were injured although a total of four vehicles were damaged.

The first mishap occurred at 2:25 p.m. at the West College-Church Street intersection. A car driven by Helen J. McManus of 708 South Church going north on Church collided with a car driven by Harry E. Wells, rural route one, Roodhouse, who was turning right off College onto Church.

City police officers investigating the accident issued a ticket to Wells for running a red light at the intersection. Both cars left the scene under their own power.

The second accident took place at 3 p.m. at the intersection of South Fayette and West Morgan. Donna Robinson of 412 North Laurel Drive heading west on Morgan and Delmar Hoots, 747 West Walnut, traveling south on Fayette collided at the intersection. The Hoots auto was damaged in the front end and was towed to Coiclasure's garage by the Lukeman wrecker. The Robinson auto was damaged in the right front door.

Turner Family Home Destroyed By Fire Saturday

NORTONVILLE — A fire of undetermined origin destroyed a one story frame building in Nortonville Saturday, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Turner and family. The fire began while the Turners and their 11 children were away from home and was well under way before help could get to it. Firemen were able to save only a bed mattress.

The fire was reported by two of the Turner children who had left home only a short time before to go hunting. They had returned to get a forgotten item and discovered the house on fire. They went to a nearby neighbor and summoned the Murrayville fire department who responded and managed to keep the fire from spreading beyond the house.

The building was the old Nortonville grade school which the Turners purchased and converted into a residence a few years ago.

FIREMEN ANSWER TWO ALARMS

Firemen answered two alarms Saturday for minor fires. The first alarm came from 535 Howe Street at the home of Margaret Lahey where an overheated oil stove was causing trouble. The fire was quickly brought under control and no damage was reported.

A faulty trash burner caused a grass fire in the afternoon at 461 South East Street, the home of Obie Twyford. The flames were soon put out.

Camps Line Up In New Orleans Integration Fight

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Hostile camps in the scheduled integration of New Orleans public schools Monday lined up Saturday for last-ditch litigation and legislation.

From Washington, U.S. Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers warned he will use the full power of his office to prevent Louisiana officials from blocking court-ordered integration.

In a telegram to Louisiana Gov. Jimmie Davis in Baton Rouge, Rogers said he was confident Louisiana public officials would support the Constitution of the United States.

Davis, who had dodged process servers in earlier federal action, notified the U.S. marshal he would accept service of an order to keep out of the New Orleans school integration fight.

Rogers also was expected to communicate with New Orleans Mayor deLesseps Morrison.

Morrison wrote to the legislature asking lawmakers to take no action which would remove public officials from office, have the effect of disturbing the peace and order of this community, or that would close the public schools.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People filed a new plea in federal court here Saturday to ban anyone from interfering with the desegregation of first grades. U.S. District Judge J. Skelly Wright, before whom the suit was filed, already had enjoined state authorities from interfering with the school board's plan to integrate. The board planned Monday to put, under guard, five Negro children in first grades of presently white schools.

The New Orleans case was viewed as a test of the fate of segregated schools throughout the state.

Power Struggle In Congo Keeps Officials Jittery

STANLEYVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Mutinous military policemen hold this capital city of the Congo's Oriental Province at gunpoint Saturday in the name of ex-Premier Patrice Lumumba.

The military regime of Col. Joseph Mobutu in Leopoldville, 800 miles to the southwest, does not exist for this city within a jungle.

Jittery officials of the provincial government are arrested daily. Officers of the disorganized garrison are beaten and thrown into jail. The slightest suspicion of pro-Mobutu sympathies can cause this.

No one knows from day to day who commands the troops or who is in charge of the 11 local government ministeries.

Alphonse Songolo, once Lumumba's communications minister but later his detractor, is in the city hospital going blind. He was beaten for two hours by military police, then left unattended for four days.

U.N. officials, by now grim-faced chain smokers half drugged from endless cups of coffee, say the situation is out of their hands.

"They are cruel and dangerous children," says Slavomir Brzak of Czechoslovakia, U.N. civilian affairs officer here, spreading his arms in dismay as he talks of the Congolese.

"We cannot do anything without being accused of interfering in their internal affairs."

Though Songolo is a parliamentarian and, theoretically under U.N. protection, Brak has not tried to see him since his beating and near blinding.

"We have no instructions to deal with this situation," says Col. Wolde Yohannes Shita, commander of the Ethiopian Tekl brigade. Those troops, in theory, police this city of 130,000 and all of vast Oriental Province.

"All we can do is to post guards and send patrols to make sure there is no looting," says Shita. "Sometimes our presence alone prevents trouble. But we cannot really interfere."

Shita has 1,800 men under his command in Stanleyville and at garrisons in Bunia, Paulis and Buta.

The terror of the city are some 300 Congolese military policemen, hard-faced with red bands around their brown helmets.

Behind them is a triumvirate skilfully planning Lumumba's return to power by using Stanleyville and Oriental Province as a springboard.

Third Quarter Surge Gives JHS Undefeated Season, 29-6

Illinois' Biggest Offensive Show Halts Badgers

Fighting Illini Close Home Season In 35-14 Win

By JOE MOOSHILL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Illinois, putting on one of its biggest shows on offense this year, crushed Wisconsin, 35-14, today in a Big Ten game which saw most of the scoring packed into the second half.

Leading 7-0 at the half, Illinois scored a pair of quick touchdowns early in the third quarter after recovering a fumble and intercepting a pass and then capped the route when Ethan Blackaby took a Wisconsin punt and sprinted 68 yards for a touchdown.

Wisconsin, showing little else than the passing of Ron Miller on offense, didn't get into the scoring column until Illinois had carved out a 21-0 lead.

Miller passed for both of Wisconsin's touchdowns but the Badgers couldn't muster a running attack to help out the sensational sophomore.

Wisconsin threatened early in the game. But it was hampered by a pass interception and again by a fumble.

Illinois didn't get rolling until the second half but the Illini did manage to score early in the second quarter. Substitute quarterback Mel Meyers threw a 21-yard scoring pass to Marshall Starks. Starks and Blackaby accounted for two touchdowns each.

A strong south wind of 20 miles an hour marred an otherwise football day and Illinois made the best of weather conditions. Wisconsin had the wind in its favor in the second quarter but the Illini dominated the period by running off 21 plays in a 77-yard march which ended on an attempted field goal. The attempt failed. The ball fell short.

Illinois scored twice in the first seven minutes of the third quarter and was never in danger after that.

Illinois kicked off to Tom Wiesner to open the second half, but Wiesner fumbled and Bob Mountz recovered for the Illini on the Wisconsin 25. Seven plays later Blackaby went over from the 1-yard line for the score. Gerry Wood booted the second of his five extra points.

Illinois kicked off again and on the second play from scrimmage, Jim Brown intercepted a Miller pass on the Wisconsin 22. Johnny Easterbrook and Bill Brown took turns carrying to the 5-yard line before Easterbrook went over on the option play.

Late in the third quarter, Miller began hitting on his passes and the Badgers finally scored on a 14-yard pass from Miller to El-Mara Ezerins. Ev Kunesh kicked the extra point.

Illinois, however, roared back and marched from its own 24 to the Badger 3-yard line with Starks completing the drive with a smash off right guard for the score.

With time running out in the game, Miller again took to the air. He hit Ezerine with a 13-yard pass and then followed with tosses of three and 37 yards to Ron Staley. He hit Staley again with a 13-yard pass and the junior end fell into the end zone for the final touchdown of the game.

Illinois netted 247 yards rushing with Easterbrook and Bill Brown carrying the load. The Illini picked up 56 yards passing and completed five of nine aerials.

Easterbrook netted 95 in 16 carries and Brown totaled 78 yards in 19 carries.

Wisconsin held to 43 yards on the ground, picked up 194 in the air. Miller completed 13 of 27 passes and accounted for all of Wisconsin's aerial yardage.

The victory was the fifth for Illinois in eight games and gave the Illini a 2-3 record in the Big Ten. Wisconsin, 2-4 in the conference, has an over-all mark of four victories in eight games.

The scoring summary:

Missouri Keeps Big 8 Hopes Up With 41-19 Win Over Oklahoma

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Two long scoring jaunts of 77 and 60 yards by halfback Norris Stevenson aided the Missouri Tigers to a 41-19 football victory over Oklahoma Saturday and kept them on the road toward a Big Eight Conference championship.

It was Missouri's ninth straight victory and sixth triumph in the conference and Oklahoma's third loss which left the Sooners far back in the race for the first time in 14 years.

Oklahoma's Mike McClellan sped 70 yards down the sidelines after a cutback through tackle to get the Sooners off to a 6-0 lead.

Missouri, No. 2 in the nation, immediately stormed 67 yards in 14 plays for the tying touchdown. Donnie Smith plunged two yards for the score and Bill Tobin kicked the first of five extra points, giving him 21 straight for the season. He added two field goals of 32 and 29 yards to wind up with 11 points for the day.

Michigan State Rallies To Shade Wildcats, 21-18

By Jerry LISKA

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Fullback Ron Hatcher streaked 51 and 32 yards and halfback Gary Ballman sprinted 74 for three second half touchdowns which rallied Michigan State to a 21-18 Big Ten football victory over Northwestern Saturday.

Northwestern was on the Michigan State 2-yard line when the game ended. Homecoming - celebrating Northwestern started fast with two first quarter touchdowns and a 12-0 lead.

But usually reliable placekicker Mike Stock failed to convert after all three Wildcat touchdowns for the margin of defeat. Stock had kicked seven straight extra points this season.

Two Swedish princesse, Birgitta and Desiree, granddaughters of King Gustaf Adolf VI, briefly attended the game, but missed all the excitement, including Northwestern's dramatic bid for a clinching fourth touchdown which failed by two yards when Dick Thornton's pass fell harmlessly in the end zone as the gun sounded.

Northwestern had made it 21-18 midway in the fourth period on Thornton's four-yard touchdown pass to end Elbert Kimbrough.

Then came the thrilling finish. Led by Thornton's passing, the Wildcats battled to the Spartan 6 where pass interference was called on Michigan State. Thornton tried two runs, clawing to just inside the 2. With the clock running out, Thornton tried the pass that failed.

Michigan State's three touchdowns came with lightning suddenness, but it was the toe of Art Brandstatter, who booted all three extra points, which salvaged the Spartan triumph.

Illinois College Closes Successful Season In 12-7 Win Over Central

FAYETTE, Mo. — Coach Joe Brooks' Illinois College Blueboys ended their most successful season on the gridiron in five years with a 12-7 victory over Central College here Saturday. It was the first win the Blueboys had ever grabbed on the Eagles' home field.

The contest was IC's best effort of the season and the Blueboys worked hard for victory number five in eight starts. To celebrate the win the players carried Coach Brooks off the field on their shoulders.

Jim Patton, a workhorse for the winners, played his final grid game for Illinois College as did seniors Bill Reneker, Ron Seibold, George Boyle and Dick Orendorff.

Frank Harris also came through and kept the Blueboys out of trouble with some fine punts.

After a scoreless first half, IC took the 3rd quarter kickoff and marched 65 yards with Bob Volk scoring from 16 yards out on an option play. The scoring drive took 12 plays. Ken Mock's PAT attempt was blocked.

In the early minutes of the final canto Central went out in front when a Blueboy fumble was picked up on the 31 yard line and returned 69 yards for a touchdown by freshman halfback Dick Cation. Following the point after kick the clock showed 12:30 remaining to be played.

The Blueboys put the kickoff in play on the 35 and began a sustained 65 yard scoring drive. Halfback Tom Francis capped the long march on the 18th play of the series from two yards out. Mock's PAT was off but IC had its margin of victory with 3:25 remaining.

A sustained march plus a 15 yard penalty moved the Eagles to IC's 21 yard line in the dying moments. Two passes fell incomplete before one was hauled in for a four yard loss back to the 25 where the Blueboys took over when a fourth down pass was broken up by Dave Fortado and Don Boyer. Less than 10 seconds remained when IC regained possession, and Central was assured of its seventh loss against a lone victory.

Miami Trudges By Irish, 28-21

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Miami's Hurricane blew 80 yards for a last quarter touchdown Saturday night to win a thrilling, see-saw battle with Notre Dame 28-21.

Dazzling runs by several backs and a stirring aerial duel between Eddie Johns of Miami and Daryle Lamonica of Notre Dame highlighted an explosive game in which Miami pinned a seventh straight defeat on the frustrated Irish.

Miami never trailed, but the fierce battle was deadlocked 14-14 at the half and 21-21 at the end of the third period.

Then Johns, the sophomore quarterback, opened the way to victory for the Hurricanes as he threaded his way behind superb blocking 50 yards to the Notre Dame 15 with 11:35 left in the game.

Halfback Jim Vollenweider cracked over from the four. Al Dangel made his fourth straight conversion, and this time Notre Dame was unable to fight back.

Johns and Vollenweider each scored two touchdowns for the Hurricanes, all on short runs. Notre Dame also got all its scores on short plunges by Bill Ahern, Mike Lind and Lamonica.

But every touchdown was set up by explosive long gainers.

A 56-yard burst by Nick Ryder through a flock of Irish tacklers was a standout in the Miami attack. For Notre Dame, it was Angelo Dabiero breaking away for runs of 38 and 18 yards.

Carroll Shades Millikin, 7-6

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Carroll scored in the final two minutes of the game on a 7-yard pass play to defeat Millikin 7-6 Saturday.

Millikin scored in the second period on a 56-yard drive capped by Al Domescik's 13-yard scoring run. A bad pass from center prevented the extra point.

Carroll cinched it in the final minutes when John Davis hit Ken Hill with a 15-yard toss and Hill streaked the remaining 55 yards to score. Gary Blazek, a substitute kicker, booted the decisive extra point, his first of the season.

Millikin reached the 17-yard line in the third and the 13 in the fourth before being stopped. Carroll threatened mildly in the third, but was halted on the 27.

Name Shroyer Coach Of Year For District 20

CHARLESTON, Ill. — The head football coach at Millikin University in Decatur has been named coach of the year for the N.A.I.A. District 20, which comprises all of Illinois.

Don Shroyer, the Big Blue coach since 1956, has led the Millikin team to a record of 7 wins and 2 losses during the 1960 season, the best finish for the school since 1942.

The Big Blue lost Saturday to Carroll College in the season finale. The Shroyer team previously had defeated Illinois State Normal, Wayne State, North Park, Augustana, Lake Forest and Illinois Wesleyan. North Central downed Millikin a week ago yesterday.

Shroyer, a product of Lovington High School and Millikin, lettered in football at Millikin for all four years, making the all-conference team of CCI in his latter three years. He was the conference leading scorer his sophomore and junior years and leading ground gainer his sophomore year.

A former pro football player, Shroyer played one season (1950) with the Chicago Bears. He was used primarily on defense and punt returns.

He began his coaching career in 1951 at Carmi High School, where he compiled a record of 30 wins, 10 losses and four ties. His Millikin record through Saturday has been 20 wins, 19 losses, and one tie.

Shroyer is an exponent of the straight T, but uses numerous variations to meet special defensive situations and to utilize his personnel to best advantage.

The coach of the year also handles the track team in the spring and carries the academic rank of assistant professor of physical education.

Principia Loses To Ind. Central

ELSAH, Ill. (AP)—Indiana Central bounced back for a season-ending 19-14 football victory over Principia Saturday after dropping behind 14-0 in the first seven minutes.

The Indianapolis team — champions of the Indiana College Conference — finally scored with 16 seconds left in the first half on a 3-yard plunge by quarterback Carol Purichia that climaxed a 45-yard drive.

The Greyhounds drove 75 to score in the third period, Jim Ware going in from the 10. They went 70 yards in the final period for the winning TD, which was scored on a 29-yard pass, Purichia to Walt Lyons.

The Greyhounds fumbled on their 15 after the opening kickoff, and the Indians grabbed a 7-0 lead. Then came a 70-yard Principia drive with Dick Power scoring from the 10.

Principia, champs of the Prairie College Conference, completed the season with a 5-3 record.

Crimsons Snare Ninth Victory With 20 Points In Deciding Quarter

HANNIBAL — A third quarter scoring spree sent Jacksonville on its way toward an undefeated season here Saturday night as Coach Bob Kraushaar's Crimsons amassed 20 points in the deciding canto and whipped a determined Hannibal aggregation, 29-6.

The fired-up Crimsons wasted little time after the 7-6 halftime lead as they came back to drive 65 yards on the kickoff and then turned a pass interception and bad punt into a pair of additional tallies for the margin of victory.

Jacksonville was way off form, in the second period when it lost 25 yards rushing as Hannibal had the Crimson plays well pegged and the Jacks failed to pick up a first down. It was by far Jacksonville's weakest output in 36 quarters of play this season. But they atoned for it in the second half to keep their 10-game winning streak intact.

Hannibal outrushed the Jacks, 203-189, of which 149 came in the second half, but the winners outdistanced the Pirates via the aerial route, 54 yards to Hannibal's fat zero. This helpful aid gave Jacksonville the total yardage honors with 243 to 203.

Thirteen seniors made their final appearance on the grid turf for the Crimsons and they saw plenty of action. Getting into combat were Gary Spangenberg, Bill Stanford, Ken Norton, Joey Wells, John Wright, Rich Spencer, Erland Thady, Ron Tomhave, Jono Hildner, Jack McCarty, Dave Chapman, Tom Dailey and Fred Busche.

Stymie Drive, Score

Ken Norton kicked for Jacksonville to get the contest underway and Coach Bill Mills' fired-up Pirates, using tricky deception, drove to the Crimson 16 yard line before halfback Gary Spangenberg recovered to get the Crimsons out of trouble.

Jacksonville put its only serious drive of the first half into operation at this point and drove 84 yards in 12 plays with QB Bill Stanford sneaking over from the one. Norton split the uprights for a 7-0 lead. JHS relied on the running of Ken Norton, Gary Spangenberg, Wes Coulter and Bill Stanford to rack up 59 yards on the ground and one 25 yard pass play from Stanford to Jack McCarty to account for the yardage.

Hannibal's offense, which for the most part seemed to puzzle the usually stingy JHS defenders, carried the Pirates to the five yard line of the winners as the first period ended.

Yield 32nd Point

On the first play of the new chapter, B. J. Bonta took a pitch-out and scampered the remaining five yards for Hannibal's only score. Hildner, Coulter and Wells blocked Ryan's point after touchdown kick to cling to a narrow 7-6 lead. The TD was the 32nd point given up by the JHS defense this season.

The remainder of the quarter presented no exciting action as the defensive units of both elevens stymied the drives of the other and brought about exchanges of punts and one pass interception. It was evident Hannibal had scouted the Crimsons well as the Jacks couldn't get their usual potent offensive attack into harness. Hannibal had 125 yards rushing to Jacksonville's 40 for the first half. JHS punted three times in the first half, none in the second two quarters, and Ron Yates averaged 38 yards each kick for 114 yards.

A Different Outfit

Jacksonville settled down at the outset of the third period and took the opening kickoff 65 yards in five plays for some insurance. Before Spangenberg plowed over from the two for the tally, the highlight of the drive had been a 53 yard jaunt by QB Bill Stanford on a sneak after a fake handoff. It was the longest dash of the game. Norton converted for a 14-6 lead.

The two teams exchanged fumbles before Ron Yates intercepted a Behymer flat pass at mid-field and lugged it 23 yards to the Hannibal 27 to get JHS within striking distance again. Two runs by Coulter and a five yarder by Gary Spangenberg set up a 12 yard payoff pitch from Stanford to end Ron Tomhave for a 20-6 lead. The score remained unchanged as Norton's PAT boot was blocked with five minutes left to play in the third quarter.

Coaches Kraushaar and Rosenberger watched their keyed-up charges capitalize on a weak Hannibal punt minutes later to the Pirate 37 yard stripe which was returned to the 23 by Tomhave for a 14 yard pickup. Coulter got two yards on a smash before Gary Spangenberg dazzled the Pirates with his swivel-hips to go 21 yards for the score on a beautiful piece of broken field running. The pass for the PAT was high but Norton found running room and lugged the pigskin 10 yards for a 27-6 spread.

Action But No Score

The fourth quarter produced a lot of action but no touchdown for either team. Jacksonville drove 52 yards on runs by Norton, Yates, Stanford and two passes, Stanford to Tomhave, and Stanford to Yates, only to see Hannibal make a goal line stand on its own one and take over on downs. This deep penetration led to Jacksonville's first safety of the year four plays later when the bad snap from center on fourth down was recovered by Pirate punter Charlie Broddus with 4:15 left in the game. JHS took Hannibal's free kick and held the ball two plays before a Pirate intercepted a pass on his own 29. Hannibal also had little success and the game ended at mid-field.

The Crimsons fell nine points short of the single season scoring record of 325 points by the 1957 club. They totaled 316 for the year.

The win was the 58th against 10 losses and three ties for the veteran combination of Bob Kraushaar and Al Rosenberger. It was also the 101st for Kraushaar against 43 losses and six ties in his 17 years at Jacksonville. Hannibal finished the year with one win, seven losses.

Iowa Regains Conference Lead By Routing Buckeyes

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—Gouging chunks of yardage in a furious running attack, Iowa shot back into the Big Ten lead and contention for the national football title with a 35-12 conquest of Ohio State Saturday.

Junior halfback Larry Ferguson's flashy 91-yard scoring dash down the sidelines and sophomore fullback Joe Williams' 49-yard touchdown burst highlighted the Hawkeyes' nationally-televised victory.

The stunning triumph assured the Hawks at least a tie for the Big Ten crown with a 5-1 record as previously unbeaten Minnesota was upset 23-14 by Purdue. The Gophers must beat Wisconsin next week to share the championship.

Iowa built a 28-6 halftime lead and used a stubborn defense to turn back the Buckeyes' second half bids.

Williams also scored on a two-yard plunge. Quarterback Wilburn Hollis added a 12-yard touchdown and Matt Szykowny scored on a sneak.

Auburn's Three Field Goals Stop Georgia

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Mighty Ed Dyas kicked three field goals for a new national record and gave Auburn a 9-6 football victory over Georgia Saturday.

Both teams scored all their points on kicking.

The unerring accuracy of Dyas' right foot gave him 12 field goals this year—at least one in each of the Tigers' eight games—and a total of 16 in his college career, the most ever kicked by a college player.

Georgia's scoring came on two field goals by Durward Pennington, but it was the dreaded passing of quarterback Francis Tarkenton which put the ball in position to try for the 3-pointers.

Rebels End Jinx With Tennessee

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Mississippi broke a 40-year-old jinx Saturday and crushed Tennessee 24-3 on its home field on the passing of quarterback Jake Gibbs and the running of fullback James Anderson.

These Southeastern Conference teams have met here 13 times since 1920 and Mississippi has never won.

It was the eighth victory of the season for the undefeated once-tied Rebels, who now need only a triumph over Mississippi State to wrap up their fourth conference crown for Coach Johnny Vaught.

The loss was Tennessee's second of the season and it left the Vols with a 5-2-1 record.

Mississippi, No. 4 in the nation, took the opening kickoff and stormed 76 yards for a touchdown, with Anderson slicing off tackle from the 2. Allen Green made good the first of three conversions.

Gibbs, who riddled Tennessee's secondary with 11 completed passes out of 13 for 112 yards and one touchdown, connected on three straight tosses to halfback Bobby Crespino on the drive.

DEKALB, Ill. (AP) — Northern Illinois rolled up a 21-6 halftime lead Saturday, then held off LaCrosse State (Wis.) for a 28-26 non-conference football victory.

Jim Jeskewitz scored for the visitors in the first quarter on a 62-yard runback of a pass interception.

Northern then scored three times in the second period.

Mike Henigan scored on a 12-yard pass from Tom Beck, Bob Soltis counted on an 11-yard run, and Beck went across from the one. Floyd Deyo converted each time.

In the third quarter, LaCrosse cut the margin to 21-13 on Andy Funderson's 16-yard run and Fred Pogratz' conversion. Then Soltis scored from the six-yard line and Deyo added the point.

Before the third was over, Ongratz plunged from the one and booted the point. In the fourth, Funderson's 12-yard run counted again for LaCrosse.

Later in the third period, Augustana drove 65 yards in 12 plays, the touchdown coming on a five-yard pass from Ken Collinson to Bruce Horton.

Ending the regular College Conference of Illinois campaign, Wesleyan took a second place tie with Millikin. Each had a 3-2 mark. Augustana ended with a 1-3-1 conference slate, its only triumph being an early season victory over North Central, the CCI champion with a 4-1 record.

International Wake Livelier Than The Event

By GEORGE BOWEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — The Washington, D. C. International was laid to rest for the ninth time Friday, but the wake was livelier than the event.

Bald Eagle took the starch out of the race by zooming off to a four-length lead in less than a quarter of a mile, increasing it to 10 after a mile and being a safe two at the end of the mile and half.

Harry F. Guggenheim's 5-year-old thus became the first two-time winner of the International and fourth to do it in American racing colors. The victory also supported his bid in the voting for best horse of the year in this country.

But Bald Eagle's supremacy was challenged by the trainer for Harmonizing, E. W. King. The Russians in turn tried to yell foul against Harmonizing.

On top of that, the favorite French starter Puissant Chef dumped his rider at the start to keep boiling the aftermath talk of the International.

While Harmonizing came on to finish second to Bald Eagle, King wasn't satisfied for the horse he claimed for $6,500 in July.

Harmonizing was left practically standing at the start of the field of 11 horses from six nations. He was still eighth at the end of a mile.

"I had the best horse," said King, whose wife owns Harmonizing in partnership with Jean DiMarco. "It was the rottenest start I ever saw."

Jockey Nikolai Nasibov on Russia's Zabeg had even more of a complaint. He felt he was fouled by Harmonizing in the stretch run and he couldn't get his message through in time because of a foul up in signals.

Zabeg finished only a length behind Harmonizing and his fellow traveler from Russia, Zadorny, was another head aft.

Nasibov raised his whip to the stewards after the race, saying that is the sign for a foul claim in the Soviet Union. In this country, it's merely a sign the jockey is ready to dismount.

By the time Nasibov found an interpreter and reached the stewards' stand to complain, the result had been declared official.

Puissant Chef's unseated jockey said his horse was scared by the movement of the arms of starter Eddie Blind.

Bald Eagle had the $70,000 first prize, Harmonizing $15,000 and the Russians $20,000.

McCOVEY, ALOU HOMER

NAGOYA, Japan (AP) — Willie McCovey and Felipe Alou each hammered two home runs Saturday as the San Francisco Giants collected 16 hits and walloped the Japan All-Stars 14-2 in the next-to-last game on their baseball tour.

Andre Rodgers, traded to Milwaukee for new San Francisco Manager Al Dark while on the tour, also hit a home run as the Giants put away their 11th and most lopsided victory on the 16-game tour. The Japanese All-Stars have won three games. One was a tie.

Deke Pollard Plays Final Tilt For Western

Deke Pollard, senior linebacker, formerly of Roodhouse and now a resident of Jacksonville played his last football game for the Western Ill. University Leathernecks Saturday at Yipsalanti, Mich., against Eastern Michigan.

Pollard was called on for double duty this week due to co-captain Washkevich's injury. Deke has been used on defense only this year. But the 1960 back may have to take over some of the offensive chores for Art Dufelmeier's crew.

Last week Pollard set up a touchdown against Normal by recovering a fumble and was credited with 13 tackles in one half.

Navy Wallops Virginia, 41-6

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Joe Bellino, scoring four touchdowns in one of his finest individual performances as a Navy player, powered the Middies to a 41-6 football victory over Virginia Saturday and set two new Naval Academy records.

One of the runs by the Winchester, Mass., rocket was for 90 yards, his longest run as a varsity player. His other touchdowns came on an eight-yard pass play, a dash of 39 yards, and a plunge of one yard which took him four cracks at a stubborn Virginia line to make.

Bellino gained 198 yards in 17 carries against the hapless Cavaliers, who lost their 25th straight game, giving him a new season rushing record for an Academy player. His 749 yards for nine games wiped out a previous mark of 691 yards set by Fred Franco in 1952.

His 24 points were the highest scored in a single game by a Navy player and were added to the 80 he already had scored this season for a modern Navy record.

Huskies Crush California, 27-7

SEATTLE (AP)—The muscle men of Washington crunched out a 27-7 football victory over California's Bears to win the Big Five championship and all but clinch a second straight Rose Bowl bid Saturday.

The Big Five names the Western representative to the bowl.

The favored Huskies hammered 72 yards in a dozen plays from the opening kickoff to score, and ran up all their points before California made a last-quarter tally.

Washington gave the big California line a working over in its opening drive, throwing its big backs up the middle for short but effective gains. Ray Jackson plunged the last two yards.

That first drive used up only five minutes and Washington had its second tally less than four minutes later, going 49 yards in just 3 plays.

A pass interception by center Roy McKasson, Washington's All America candidate, set up a second-quarter touchdown and the Huskies marched 96 yards for their final tally in the third quarter.

SMU Bows To Arkansas, 26-3

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas' Razorbacks rooted to within a nose of the Cotton Bowl Saturday when quarterbacks George McKinney and Billy Moore keyed a 26-3 Southwest Conference victory over stubborn Southern Methodist.

If the Razorbacks beat Texas Tech in Lubbock, Tex., next Saturday, they'll clinch the host spot in the Botton Bowl and at least a tie for the conference championship.

McKinney provided key plays on all three Arkansas touchdown drives. Alternating field general Moore dug out vital yardage in each push and scored once on a one-yard plunge.

AIDS IN VICTORY

CAMBRIDGE, England (AP) — Herb Elliott, world record holder for the mile run, finished second in a gruelling cross country race Saturday, and helped Cambridge University defeat the Royal Air Force 31-47.

The great Australian runner was beaten by his team captain, Tim Briault, over a heavy 6½-mile course. Briault was timed in 35 minutes, 54 seconds, and Elliott in 36:34.

Aerial Attack Aids Boilermaker Victory

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Purdue's Boilermakers, four-time losers with a disdain for the mighty, caught Minnesota Saturday with a first half aerial offensive and whipped the nation's No. 1 ranked football team, 23-14.

With their dream of an unbeaten season and national title fading, the Gophers scored two second half touchdowns but were beaten by Bernie Allen's 35-yard field goal in the third period.

Purdue got a freak touchdown on the game's final play.

Allen's rifle arm shot Purdue to two first half touchdowns and a 14-0 lead before Minnesota recovered. Minnesota swept back on touchdowns by Bill Munsey and Roger Hagberg, but Purdue twice braced in the final four minutes when Minnesota threatened to pull it out.

The loss prevented Minnesota from capturing at least a share of its first Big Ten championship since 1941, although the Gophers can still make it next week against Wisconsin. For Purdue the victory was only No. 3 of the season. But two of those were achieved against national powers, Ohio State and Minnesota.

The loss dropped Minnesota to second place in the Big Ten race behind Iowa. The Hawkeyes, who were knocked out of the No. 1 national rating last week by Minnesota, clinched no worse than a tie for the Big Ten crown by beating Ohio State in their final conference game 35-12 Saturday. Minnesota can match Iowa's 5-1 record by beating Wisconsin in its finale next week.

For Purdue the victory was only No. 3 of the season, two against national powers — Ohio State and Minnesota.

Southern Notches IIAC Title, 28-17

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. (AP) — Southern Illinois University scored three touchdowns in the fourth quarter Saturday, defeating Central Michigan 28-17 for its first Interstate Intercollegiate Conference football championship.

SIU scored on the third play of the final period to climax an 80-yard drive. Fullback Tom Bruna plunged from three yards out.

Forcing the Chippewas to punt, SIU took over again on its own 12-yard line and powered its way 88 yards for the game-winning TD. Clarence Walker scored on a five-yard slant off tackle.

BERLIN IS GREEN AGAIN

BERLIN (AP) — Many trees cut for fuel during and after the war are being replaced by new growth, and Berlin is regaining its title as the world's greenest city. With autumn, city officials are meeting the problem of falling leaves by selling them as garden compost for 24 cents a cubic meter. Officials estimate there are 220,000 trees on West Berlin's streets and 200 million in its parks and woods.

Teaching In Special Services Conference Aim Toward Students

"Support from several community organizations is contributing towards assuring a successful Student Recruitment Conference" stated Chairman Dolores Berry as she directed final preparations for today's opening meeting.

Jacksonville's Council for Exceptional Children is providing an opportunity for over 50 area high school students to get a closer look at educational services for all areas of Exceptional Children. The two-day conference, beginning today at 3 p.m. at Turner Junior High school, is possible through the contributions of several local organizations and the cooperation of the various schools in town.

Members of the Jacksonville Junior Chamber of Commerce, Delta Kappa Gamma, and the Omego and Xi Gamma Tau chapters of Beta Sigma Phi have donated funds to provide the Sunday evening supper for the student delegates. Cookies for the supper are being given for the same supper by members of Altrusa club. On Monday, the students will have a "box lunch" between their visits to the schools which is being financed through the contribution of the local Elks.

Housing, transportation, and breakfast will be provided by members of C.E.C. During the social hour this evening, the students will enjoy Pepsi, compliments of the Pepsi Cola Company.

Actual Demonstrations

Three demonstrations comprise the major part of the afternoon's program. This part of the conference, which is open to the public, follows brief greetings from J. A. Mann, Superintendent of School District 117; Mrs. Lyndell Zimmerman, Past President of the Illinois Council for Exceptional Children; and Dr. Ray Graham, Director of Special Education, State of Illinois.

Clarence Richardson, faculty member of the Illinois Braille and Sight-Saving School, will demonstrate methods of teaching the blind to get around by themselves.

Martha Patterson, Jane Thorndike, and Doris Conant will illustrate some remedial reading procedures used in the public schools. With several children from the Illinois School for the Deaf, Blanch Reuck will show some techniques used to educate the deaf child.

During the hours 5-7:30 p.m., students will have time to talk with personnel from the various schools including college faculty, and to enjoy supper, with entertainment by Ray Moeller, a student from MacMurray, who will play his accordion, and by the I.S.D. Chorus under the direction of Rhoda Samoore.

Four "do-it-yourself" sessions are scheduled for the evening program. Teachers Jean Imboden, Bob Lambert, Rose McGuire, and Virginia Nielsen will conduct sessions in the areas of the deaf, speech correction, blind, and mentally handicapped, respectively.

Monday visitations will begin at 8:15 at I.S.D. Here students will tour the Oral departments, the Acoustic department, the Manual department, and the Vocational department. The delegates will then visit I.B.S.S.S. for demonstrations of braille and music instruction by the Sight-Saving department, and to tour the campus. Visiting in the public schools will include observing physical therapy, speech correction, classes for the gifted, remedial reading, classes for the educable mentally handicapped and the physically handicapped.

After the completion of all visits, the conference will conclude with a brief program at the I.S.D. gymnasium.

Editorial Comment

They're Off-Target

There certainly was nothing unexpected in the evident threat of Soviet Communist party's secretary, Kozlov, that the Russians might decide some day to wipe out the proposed Polaris submarine base in Britain's Firth of Clyde.

Any European or Near Eastern nation which has lent either its soil or its waters to U.S. use for bases has at one time or another been subjected to Soviet abuse and threat. The vehemence of the reaction that is often stirred constitutes strong testimony to the worth of these bases.

Unhappily all the unfavorable reaction did not come from the Kremlin. As so often before, elements in Britain's Labor party protested the proposed new installation heatedly.

Hugh Gaitskell, Labor party leader, was compelled under the circumstances to urge that any Polaris submarines based in British waters not take any action which might "create any danger of war."

He knows full well, of course, that the purpose of the base is not aggressive but defensive, as are all the NATO bases ringing the Soviet orbit in a western arc.

The Polaris, firing nuclear weapons from beneath the waves, is potentially one of the most remarkably mobile weapons we could possibly employ. The mere knowledge of its presence in European waters should act as a new deterrent to any rash design conceived in the Kremlin for the surprise destruction of the free world.

It is true, as some military analysts have noted, that the Polaris, being a long range weapon, does not need Britain as a repair base. It can make it back to the United States. Nevertheless, others can argue with force that its speedy availability so close to Soviet borders gives us a valuable flexibility in potential retaliatory striking power.

Surely, too, there is little that is admirable in some Laborites' wringing of hands over the increased danger to Britain. In a nuclear war we would all get it, and the United States would be the principal target in the free world.

Prime Minister Macmillan, in agreeing to the Polaris base, has shown a proper desire to have his country continue to bear its fair share of the burden and risk of defending free nations. He deserves the fullest support of all his countrymen, including the members of the rival Labor party.

"Because it's there" is the usual answer to the question of why men climb mountains and thirst to explore forbidding, unknown lands. But a Navy doctor has another answer—at least regarding why men sign up to go to Antarctica — and it will displease a large segment of the population. Half the men who go to Antarctica do so to get away from women, says Capt. E. E. Hedblom. And 20 per cent of them do it consciously.

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Everybody who returns from Europe is an expert on food. But who is better qualified than someone who gained 10 pounds in four weeks of continental gluttony?

This expert's opinions:

Best food in Europe—Denmark and Spain.

Worst—Paris.

That last may be culinary heresy but note I don't condemn French cooking per se. The provinces surpass Paris.

An American cannot get a decent breakfast in Paris. What they do to bacon and eggs is unbelievable.

I asked my waiter why.

"Monsieur," he replied, "we have no respect for breakfast. A Frenchman drinks a cup of coffee and eats a piece of cheese for breakfast. Midday and night, ah, that's when the French eat."

After that I ordered corn flakes. No one — not even a bride — can louse up corn flakes. The French can't make good French toast, either.

My other Paris meals were in bistros touted by Parisians. I found some poor meals, some mediocre and none outstanding.

Not so in Denmark or Spain. The best seafood dinner I've ever had was in Copenhagen. Ever hear of a fish called place? It's of the flounder family and caught in the cold Scandinavian waters.

My Copenhagen fish house fluffily french-fried this white fish, topped it with a curry sauce and served plain buttered spaghetti on the side. For an appetizer, I had a dozen raw oysters taken that morning from the nearby sea. The sauce was a hot chili-horseradish mixture that was delicious.

Sluice was akavit — the Scandinavian schnapps — and Danish draft beer.

Every meal in Denmark was a masterpiece. One globe-trotting friend said the Danes have always been the best cooks in Europe but few knew it until the transpolar route made Copenhagen an airline gateway to Europe.

In Spain I ate the biggest and best steak I've ever had. It was in an Argentine restaurant. The steak top sirloin 18 inches long and nearly four inches thick, was charcoal broiled. It is so big it is served for two. Cost was $2.50 —or $1.25 per person, rest of the dinner inclued.

By contrast, my wife and I ate lunch in Montmarte in Paris at a famous cafe surrounded by starving artists. Price—$18.

No question about it. Spain and Ireland are the two best tourist bargains in Europe. In County Wicklow, I ate salmon caught only a few hours earlier. The meal — from soup to dessert — in the town's swankiest resort costs little over a dollar.

Irish ice cream is the best I've ever eaten since my mother used to make the home-made variety in a freezer every Sunday. She's Irish too and took the word cream in ice cream literally.

England, long berated for its food, came up with some delicious meals, especially breakfast. The English may like kippers for breakfast but they know how to prepare bacon and eggs.

Italian food lived up to its billing, as always. In Santa Margharita on the Italian Riviera, I had lasagna with an herb sauce — not too far removed from creamed spinach—and it was delicious. The Italian white wines, especially from Verona, were the best I tasted in Europe.

In Spain, actor Ron Randell took us out to a flamenco spot where they served a deep purple wine called tinto. The next morning I woke up with my mouth dyed a deep purple.

German and Austrian food also lived up to its reputation. I'm sorry Parisian cooking didn't because the last time I visited Paris, it was better. Maybe Zan uck is to blame.

Now, I'm home subsisting on one of those powdered 900-calories-a-day diet formulas. I've lost the 10 pounds but the memory will always linger.

FINDING THE WAY

For the Welfare of Us All

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Written For NEA

Here's a salute to that important group of citizens in any American community who give of themselves for the welfare of the community. When men and women share in the budget-askings of Community Chests and United Funds they participate in efforts which have required the brains and energies of great groups of our finest citizens.

An incident of last spring brought this into new significance. It was Sunday and the family had just gathered at the dinner table after returning from church services. The doorbell rang and one of the family said "I wonder who's collecting funds today."

There at the door stood two cute little boys not more than 6 years of age.

"We're collecting for the poor," said one.

"What poor?" I queried.

"Oh, the poor in another city," they responded.

This questioning was obviously more than the two collectors had anticipated and they began to retreat down the driveway.

"You know, boys," I said, "we all want to help one another, but are you really collecting funds to help someone else?"

With this, they fled! They'd seen so many folks coming and going collecting funds on a Sunday afternoon that these two youthful neighbors had decided to try it also.

In all of such efforts, we can get into the business of competing for loyalties and for dollars, and satisfying certain urges within ourselves St. Paul once put his finger squarely upon the problem, asking what would happen if the ear, the eye, and the mouth got into an argument concerning which was the most important member of the body. And what happens to the health of the civic body if this rivalry is fostered?

The problems of our present are complex and no automation will deliver us into a four-day week when we deal with human welfare. Such efforts require the genius of empathy, the imaginative handling of human relations, the gripping awareness of a great need, and the loving concern that it be met.

When these little boys think of their community, we want them to think of the miracle of men and women uniting to bear one another's burdens. We want them to know of a tall, united cause turning into our driveway, knowing of a ready response, because of a relevant and essential need.

CHILD PROOF CABINETS

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Childproof medicine cabinets in bathrooms are needed, Dr. Elmer Bingham of the city-county health department told a convention of the American Society of Sanitary Engineering.

Bingham told the delegates, representing the plumbing industry, that children too often get into cabinets and drink harmful medicines or poisons.

A Glance Into The Past

10 YEARS AGO

Four prisoners who escaped from the county jail Monday morning, after one of them slugged Harry Gollier, the turnkey, were recaptured in less than three hours. Three of them, armed with shotguns, gave up when they were surrounded near Ashland.

Routt wound up an undefeated grid season Saturday night by defeating Meredosia 19-2.

20 YEARS AGO

Dr. Frank L. Hall, who practiced medicine in Jacksonville for several years, died Monday in Hannibal, Mo. He was a native of Detroit, Pike County.

N. D. Norse Lodge No. 346, A. F. & A. M., of Concord will celebrate its 80th anniversary Friday. A dinner will be served in Morgan Hall at 6 p.m. and the program will be held in Trinity Methodist church.

Mrs. Minnie Miner has taught a Waverly Methodist Sunday school class for 64 years. She will be honored by an appropriate program Sunday.

50 YEARS AGO

Dr. Robert Buckthorpe, John S. Hackett and Mr. Gillham of St. Louis made an auto trip to the farm of Peter Connelly near Murrayville yesterday and spent the day hunting quail.

Louis Gorham, a worthy young gentleman employed at the well known drug firm of Coover & Shrove, has received his assistant pharmacist certificate from the state board. He can now take charge of the store while the proprietors go to dinner.

75 YEARS AGO

Last week Seavers & Rigall, grocers of Murrayville, cut a 116 pound pumpkin. The seeds were readily disposed of at five cents per dozen.

The above item reminds us that last fall a neighbor bought a load of pumpkins for $1. He fed them to his cows, gaining thereby a very heavy flow of milk, and in the spring he sold the seeds for $1.50.

By actual count, there were 11 boot and shoe drummers in town yesterday. The local merchants could scarcely wait on their customers.

100 YEARS AGO

THANKSGIVING—Gov. Wood has appointed Thursday, November 29th, as a day of Thanksgiving throughout the state.

Four prisoners, one of them a Mulatto, broke jail in this city on Tuesday night. One of them was being held for the barbarous murder of his wife, two for passing counterfeit bills, and the latter for larceny. The tool with which they worked were evidently furnished from the outside.

RAILROAD BRIDGE—We learn that the bridge at Meredosia for the passing of the trains is now rapidly progressing toward completion. This will be a great improvement on the old ferry boat. This line of road is bound to become the most important through line in the state.

Election's Post-Mortems Drag in Many Factors

BY PETER EDSON
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Any other results in the presidential election would probably have meant chaos in Washington for the next four years.

With Nixon in the White House, Kennedy and Johnson in the Senate and both houses of Congress under Democratic majorities, a Republican administration would have been hamstrung at every turn, and could have accomplished little.

The animosities built up between Kennedy and Nixon during the campaign were probably too bitter for either of the two to forget easily. Forgiving and uniting for the good of the country would have been difficult.

While A Good Case Can Be Made that a Republican president and a Democratic - controlled Congress have not been too bad for the Country during the last six years, Nixon is no Eisenhower.

The vice president, moved up to the White House, could not have exercised leadership of the American people to the degree President Eisenhower has done it since 1952.

The spectacle of Kennedy and Johnson trying to run the country from the Senate floor, with Nixon as president casting more vetoes than Eisenhower did in his second term is confusion too awful to contemplate.

So once again the American voter has sought the right decision by free exercise of his ballot.

With The Democrats In Control of the White House and Congress for the next four years, the administration will be politically united and it should move ahead. To some people it may move down wrong roads. But it will not stand still.

The great test is whether the Democrats themselves will unite to carry out their leader's program.

The desire to set up a one-party administration in control of both executive and legislative branches of the government was not, of course, a principal motivating factor for voters in this election.

In the post-mortem analyses you will be reading and listening to from now to Christmas and beyond, the Catholic vote, dissatisfaction with the U. S. position in relation to the Soviet Union, the more dynamic leadership offered by Kennedy and many other obvious reasons for Democratic victory will be cited.

But There Should be as Much Attention Paid to the reasons the Republicans lost as to why the Democrats won.

And here one almost-forgotten set of facts should not be overlooked. They center in the Republican party itself.

In his first term, Eisenhower had hopes for making the Republican party more progressive. His acceptance speech after his second-term nomination at San Francisco in 1956 expressed those hopes.

He put them into his second inaugural, his state of the union and budget message of 1957. With them—record peacetime spending proposals for new programs. Public opinion and particularly Republican opinion protested.

There were demands for cutting government expenditures and economy.

Then came the recession of 1957 and the President was forced back to more conservative positions. That may have been when Republican chances for 1960 began to slide.

This is a matter of speculation, but it is well worth considering: If the President's bold program of 1956 had been carried forward, the recession of 1957 might not have happened and the Republicans might not now be defeated.

This Is Worth Double Consideration Now as president-elect Kennedy comes forward with his bold new programs to stem a possible recession in 1961 and promote new American growth.

Happy Times

Spirit, Not Age, Is Key To Learning New Skills

BY MARIE DAERR

So you think you can't learn something new at YOUR age?

At 71, Belle R tackled a gadget she'd never before encountered: a switchboard. This was in a home for the aged into which she had recently moved.

"I learned how to run that switchboard," Belle told me. "Six months after I'd mastered it, a new and bigger one was installed.

"I learned how to run that, too."

Belle works five days a week at her job, gets a small allowance for her services.

"Moving into a home for aged means an adjustment," she said. "Having a niche to fill made that adjustment easier for me.

"I even find time to do handwork and to rough out stories for our little newspaper while I'm working. A chance to keep busy is a blessing to me."

At a golden-age center, I watched and listened while three beginning pupils took a piano lesson. One was 72, one was 68. The "baby" was 64.

Neither the 72-year-old nor the 68-year-old had had a piano lesson before they joined the center class. The 64-year-old had "five or six" when she was 16.

"We had an old organ in our parlor when I was a kid," one woman told me. "But I never had a chance to learn to play it. Now, at last, I'm realizing an ambition—music lessons."

"I'd like to get so I can play Stephen Foster songs and Irish ballads," another said. "That would make me awfully happy."

None of the three has a piano at home. All practice a bit at the center when the two pianos aren't being used by the center orchestra, the mandolin group or the golden-age chorus.

At home, the three students practice on cardboard keyboards.

"They're doing fine," their teacher told me. "I'm going to be really proud when they play for a center party one of these days."

A woman who had entered pieces of embroidery in several golden-age hobby shows in her home town—without winning prizes—became discouraged. Then she listened to some advice from the show manager.

"I know you like to embroider," the manager said. "But why not try something new? How about taking some lessons in rug-hooking?"

So, at 78, the woman began learning how to design and hook beautifully patterned rugs. At the next show, her prize-winning rug drew admiring comments and orders from people who appreciated fine craftsmanship.

The World Today

Editor's Note — International problems received wide attention in the presidential campaign. As the new president, John F. Kennedy must deal with these problems. What are his ideas? What is he likely to do? AP News Analyst James Marlow discusses these matters in this second of three special articles on what lies ahead.

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I don't know what the '60s will bring except I think they will bring hard times in the international sphere."

That was Sen. John F. Kennedy talking during the presidential campaign. Now that he's president-elect, how will he cope with the international future?

He put it this way: "In my judgment we should follow the advice of Theodore Roosevelt; be strong, maintain a strong position, but also speak softly."

Here are just a few of the tasks lying ahead for him:

Keeping peace in the Middle East; trying to keep communism out of Southeast Asia, Africa and Latin America; strengthening this country's alliances; stiff-arming the Russians on Berlin; and, while making another stab at disarmament, building a terrible arsenal of American weapons.

His most immediately spectacular problem for some time is likely to be Soviet Premier Khrushchev, who insulted President Eisenhower and said he'd try for a summit meeting with his successor.

Kennedy has been a little foggy on the subject of meeting Khrushchev. At one point in the campaign he said that before any summit with the Russian this country must build its strength, military and economic.

At another time the only preliminary he laid down — before meeting Khrushchev — was a meeting of the foreign ministers to determine whether anything might come of a Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting.

Kennedy has been very definite about his intention of stepping up American defenses with plans that range from programs on missiles to shaking up and streamlining the slow-moving Pentagon.

And, while this hurry-up defense building was taking place, Kennedy would be planning for disarmament just in case there was agreement with the Russian on it.

Here are some of the other things he said he thought about foreign affairs:

West Berlin — The Communists want to take it over. This country is committed to keeping it free. Kennedy said this country would live up to its commitment.

Middle East—He made it clear this country should act "promptly and decisively" against any Middle East nation which attacks its neighbors.

He said the president should try to get Jews and Arabs into conference to solve their problems and promised to back up their efforts with economic and technical help.

Africa—Here he spoke of a "bold and imaginative new program for the development of Africa." He suggested that this country, along with other nations able to pay the bill, should provide education, food and development capital for Africa by setting up an international fund.

Kennedy would put reliance on the United Nations in trying to help the Africans.

Latin America—During the campaign Kennedy emphasized the need for a "new attitude and a new approach" to Latin America where Vice President Richard M. Nixon was stoned and there is considerable sympathy for Fidel Castro's anti-United States revolution in Cuba.

Cuba—Kennedy was a little vague on how he'd handle Castro, particularly after pulling a boner at one time in the campaign by suggesting anti-Castro people inside Cuba should be encouraged to act against him.

This would be internal intervention by the United States and therefore a violation of a treaty this country has with Latin American nations pledging all signers not to barge into a neighbor's internal affairs.

But Kennedy suggested: This country must immediately begin a major broadcast program for Cuba: Castro must be told he can not deny this country compensation for the American property he seized; the United States must let Khrushchev, a Castro supporter, know it will permit no expansion of his foothold in this hemisphere.

The United States, Kennedy said, should seek collective action against "communism in the Caribbean" by working with this country's European allies and the Organization of American States.

And Kennedy wants economic sanctions against Castro increased.

Foreign Aid—Kennedy would revise this country's foreign aid program. He proposed a "new joint effort by all the wealthier nations to establish funds of long-term credit for India and each of the under-developed nations."

All this is a big order for a new president to impose on himself. While he was making all these proposals he was also promising a multitude of new programs for America at home.

So They Say

We have a saying to the excited, "Keep your shirt on." Henceforth, it may be, "Keep your shoe on."

Castro is a mad dog. He must be wiped out. . . . If we get him he certainly will be shot.
—Sergio Rojas Santa-Marina, former Cuban ambassador to Britain.

The Iron Curtain has been lifted to some extent. If Khrushchev lost his job tomorrow, who would we get in his place? The experts know of no other man in Russia who would be as moderate toward the West as Khrushchev . . . We could get a lot worse than this man.

Recipes for Middle-Aged Bliss Use Same Ingredients

Name the happiest middle-aged married couple you know and let me see if I can tell you some important things about the pair, even though I've never met them.

They are proud of each other. The wife is content with whatever degree of success her husband has attained. And the husband is satisfied with the kind of home his wife has made for him.

If they have grown children, they are keeping "hands off" of their lives—showing their love for their children by having faith in their ability to meet life's demands.

They share a number of interests but also pursue some interests of their own so that their individuality is not smothered by too much "togetherness."

They have good friends that both enjoy—many of them friends of long standing. Yet they have not made the mistake of limiting themselves to one group that grows smaller as the years go by.

They do more with their leisure time than just try to kill it. They are either active in community affairs or they are using some of their leisure for some form of self-expression.

They have plans for the future and are working together to make them come true. They aren't just coasting along from day to day with nothing in particular to look forward to.

They have a knack for making light of small troubles and they find a lot to laugh about.

Neither one dwells on the other's faults or shortcomings but accepts them with an easy tolerance.

They are every bit as good company as a couple as they are as individuals.

Doesn't this pretty well describe the happiest middle-aged couple of your acquaintance?

matter of FACT

Multiple births aren't just a matter of blind chance. Twins, triplets and quadruplets follow a strange pattern. For every 86 single births in the United States, there is one twin birth. Triplets are about 86 times as rare as twins; quads are about 86 times as rare as triplets. The mathematical regularity cannot be explained.

New Margarine Claims High Ratio of Unsaturated Fat

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food & Markets Editor

A new margarine that contains about 45 per cent liquid, unsaturated corn oil has just been introduced by the Corn Products Co. The unhydrogenated oil is held in a "honeycomb" of hard (hydrogenated) fat by a patented process. It has good spreading consistency and excellent flavor.

This new Mazola Margarine, for which special nutritional claims are made, is packaged as four ¼-pound foil-wrapped sticks in a one-pound carton, kept in the refrigerated case of the grocery store. It sells around 39 to 42 cents a pound. In most major markets now. Shortly to be completely national in distribution.

The manufacturers assert that this 45 per cent liquid corn oil margarine is a scientific breakthrough in the prevention of heart disease because only 55 percent of the fat used is saturated, whereas the remaining oil is unsaturated. Many physicians and nutrition researchers agree that the greater use of unsaturated fats such as corn, cotton seed, soybean and peanut oil, is indicated in the effort to reduce cholesterol in the blood stream.

However, until definite proof that cholesterol in food and in the blood stream can cause heart and arterial diseases has been discovered, most biochemists, medical researchers and nutritionists advise against any major change in the American basic diet, except cutting down on all fats if you are overweight.

The Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council (the supreme court of the American diet) reports: It is not yet possible to state definitely a reasonable allowance for fat in the diet or to indicate the character of the fatty acid mixture most favorable to the support of health. A diet selected from a wide variety of foodstuffs, both vegetable and animal, is most likely to maintain good health.

Dr. Charles Glen King, executive director of the Nutrition Foundation and professor of chemistry at Columbia University, cautions the apprehensive dieter against uninformed decisions concerning use of unsaturated (soft) fats as against hydrogenated (hard) vegetable and animal oils. Nevertheless he adds, "There are indications, however, although not yet proof, that OVEREMPHASIS on saturated (hard) fats) may be one of the many factors conducive to heart disease."

Name 17 Delegates To Annual Meeting Of IAA, Affiliates

Deliberation on farm policies and adoption of 1961 resolutions, recognition of award winners and reports and appraisals from affiliated companies will be the major items on the agenda of the Illinois Agricultural association's 46th annual meeting to be held Nov. 14-17 at the Sherman hotel in Chicago.

More than 5,000 persons, including the 513 voting delegates, are expected to attend.

The term of Boyce Moore, director of this district for the past four years, expires. He is a candidate for a third two-year term.

Mrs. LeRoy Sweet of Franklin will represent the Farm Bureau Women's organization and Lawrence T. Smith, Jr., will represent Farm Bureau Youth.

Albert Nienhiser, Frank Flynn and Byron Stewart of Jacksonville and Lester Martin of Alexander will attend the annual meeting of the Illinois Farm Supply Co. So will J. D. Bunting, manager of the Morgan County Service Co., and his two assistants, Alfred Enke and Edward Dirksmeyer.

Everett Reynolds of Jacksonville, president of the Illinois Serum association, will preside at the annual meeting of that group. A. Paul Johnson of Ashland and Chester A. Thomason of Chapin will represetn the locker company. Johnson is a member of the state board.

The annual meetings of the insurance companies will be attended by General Agent C. W. Nicholson, Sam Anderson, Neal Cooper, Dave Sidwell and Virgil Gibbs.

John W. Chambers, organization director, and Bob Hayward, Jr., assistant farm adviser will also attend the convention.

A Varied Program

The annual meeting has many facets:

1. Establishment of policies to guide and direct the IAA officers for 1961. Judging by the County Farm Bureau Policy Development reports, the state tax problem and the national farm policy problem—how to bring supply in line with demand—will be among the main resolutions to be discussed.

One of the major phases of the farm policy resolution may center around the type and size of a Conservation Reserve program this country should have. Finding ways to make taxes more equitable among all citizens was requested in virtually every county PD report, and finding ways to relieve the large load which falls on property owners is receiving steadily increased attention.

Proper use and labeling of farm chemicals was another topic frequently mentioned in county PD meetings and so were suggestions to increase and improve the generally-applauded voluntary marketing promotion program of Farm Bureau.

2. Directors from nine districts and a president and vice president will be elected.

Terms of the directors are two years. A president and vice president are elected for one-year terms.

William J. Kuhfuss, Mackinaw farmer, became IAA president in May, 1958 following the death of Otto Steffey. He has been re-elected each successive year. Edwin J. Gumm, Galesburg farmer, was elected vice president when Kuhfuss was elevated from that office and has also been re-elected annually.

To Recgnize Service

3. A special recognition program will be held Monday night. Awards will be presented to recognize achievement in such areas as citizenship, Sports Festival, food poster contest, 25-years of service to agriculture by eight vocational agriculture instructors and four farm advisers, Women's committee activities and membership acquisition and maintenance.

Among the farm advisers to be recognized for a quarter-century of serivce to agriculture are E. D. Peterson, who has been farm adviser in Montgomery County since 1946 and well known here as a livestock judge at the Morgan County Junior Fair, and J. B. Turner, Fayette County farm adviser since 1935.

4. Reports and appraisals of the problems and progress of the affiliated companies will be presented. The nine cooperative-affiliates of the IAA will report a gross dollar volume year of $247 million. Annual meetings of the companies will be held in conjunction with the IAA convention.

5. Many talks will be given to enlighten, to entertain and to provoke thinking. W. Cleon Skousen, for 16 years an FBI agent and author of the best seller, "The Naked Communist," will speak Wednesday night. Congresswoman Marguerite Stitt Church, U.S. Represenative from the 13th district, will speak at a meeting of Farm Bureau women. Her topic will be "A Woman's Code of Citizenship."

President Kuhfuss in his annual address Wednesday morning will review progress of the IAA and its affiliated companies and offer his personal views on matters which he feels are of greatest concern to agriculture.

6. Women's and Young People's conferences will also be of major interest at the IAA annual meeting. The Young People will have their Discussion Meet and Talent Find state finals. Most of the entertainment this year will be furnished by the 12 acts which have qualified for the Talent Find finals. Mrs. Lawrence Smith, Jr., of Franklin will represent this district in the Discussion Meet.

Plastic Windows In Greenhouses Called Success

URBANA — Plastic greenhouses are a coming thing among vegetable growers.

At the annual convention of the Illinois Vegetable Growers association, a University or Kentucky specialist told of their recent results in Kentucky and suggested that Illinois growers could profitably follow suit.

Speaking at Southern Illinois University, George A. Marlowe said that heated, plastic-windowed greenhouses cost from 30 to 70 cents per square foot to build compared with $1 to $3 for commercial glass greenhouses, non-heated. And the better growers are getting excellent yields from vegetables housed under plastic.

Marlowe said that, by growing tomatoes and other vegetables in plastic houses, growers can schedule their harvest for active markets. Tomatoes that are ready at Thanksgiving bring from 35 to 50 cents a pound, he pointed out.

Morgan Corn Wins Grand Championship

On May 20, 1960, a field of fine, level, dark loam soil located just north of Waverly was sold at the court house for $628 per acre, to set an all-time high for Morgan County land sold at public auction.

Eight acres of the tract had been in blue grass pasture for at least 30 years. It was plowed by the tenant, Ernest German of Waverly, on June 1, worked down on June 2, and planted on June 3.

No fertilizer was used. It was planted in standard 40 inch rows, with a plant population of about 15,000 per acre. It was cultivated twice and sprayed for weeds once.

On Oct. 15 German picked 10 ears of corn out of the field and sent them to Chillicothe, Mo., to be entered in the DeKalb national corn show held in connection with the National Mechanical Corn Picking contest. There were 700 entries from Illinois, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana, Iowa and Missouri.

On Oct. 20 the Morgan corn was judged the best of them all.

"I never saw so many good ears of corn in one field before," German says. "I believe it will make 130 bushels to the acre."

He attributes much of the greatest of the yield to the seed he used: DeKalb 805, a new super-duper single-cross hybrid that sells for $25 a bushel. It possesses the inherent vigor of hybrid corn to the nth degree

Morrow Corn Plots Give Two Surprises

The 1960 yields on the famed University of Illinois Morrow Plots produced two surprising results. A plot growing continuous corn since 1876 with no soil treatment jumped 24 bushels over 1959. Yields averaged 49.7 bushels an acre, about double that of 1959 and the highest since 1902. On another continuous corn plot receiving complete soil treatment since 1955, the yield of 96 bushels was 40 bushels above the poor showing made in 1959 and more in line with past performance.

Agronomists L. B. Miller and A. L. Lang explain the 1960 results in this way: In each year following severe drouth, corn yields on the untreated plot have bounced back well above those of the previous year. In 1935, corn yields on this plot were 28 bushels above those of the year before. In 1937, they were 29 bushels higher. So the 24-bushel recovery in 1960 over 1959 is not too surprising. Lack of moisture limits the withdrawal of plant food from the soil. The next year, when rain is more plentiful, the crop responds to the extra nutrients that are available.

On another plot where the agronomists have used a complete plant food treatment only since 1955, yields averaged 96 bushels an acre. But in the dry season last year, they dropped to 56 bushels? The drop last year was believed to be due to lack of organic matter in the soil resulting from the many years of continuous corn without any soil treament. With more adequate moisture during the first part of the growing season this year, the soil treatment produced reasonably good yields.

The top 1960 corn yield on the Morrow plots, however, was recorded on another plot that made 119 bushels an acre. This plot has been growing continuous corn since 1876. But since 1904 it has had a manure-lime-phosphate treatment. And since 1955 it has received additional nitrogen, phosphate and potash.

The corn plot receiving a continuous manure-lime-phosphate treatment since 1904 and no additional plant food yielded 84 bushels an acre.

Cold, damp fall weather triggers the distemper virus that kills roughly 70 per cent of the unvaccinated dogs it attacks. This toll is unnecessary. Vaccination against distemper is nearly 90 percent effective, and it usually lasts the dog's lifetime.

Give Key Club Awards To 4-H'ers In Greene County

CARROLLTON—Miss Judy Martin, Fred Robinson and Robert Goeddey, Greene county 4-H club members were presented the Key Club Award, the most coveted in 4-H Club recently by Warren Thies, a representative of the Cities Service Oil Company. Robinson and Goeddey represented the Agricultural 4-H clubs while Miss Martin is a member of a home economics club.

The state outstanding members score card which emphasizes consistent project and activity growth, leadership ability and satisfactory personal development is used as the basis of selection.

Winners of the award receive a 10K gold key engraved with the person's name and year and an honor certificate.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

USE OF CORN UP ONE-THIRD IN THREE YEARS

The big election campaign headlines have obscured some important farm news items. One of these is that the disappearance of corn in each of the past three years far exceeded all previous records.

Disappearance of corn in the year ending with September totaled 4.1 billion busheis. This total represents an increase of 10 percent over the year before, 21 percent over two years earlier, and 33 percent over the five-year average ending in 1957.

Total use, or disappearance, of corn first topped 3.0 billion bushels in the year beginning October 1942. In that year disappearance totaled 3.2 billion bushels as farmers fed up surplus stocks that had accumulated just before World War II. Then for 15 years the amount used stayed in the 30-billion- to 3.2 billion-bushel range.

(The year 1947-48 was an exception. The corn crop was short in 1947, and only 2.5 billion bushels of corn were used.)

The big jump in corn use in the past three years provides some important questions for consideration by farmers and Congress. One is: "What caused the big increase in the disappearance of corn?" Another: "What is the relation of price supports and price levels to the rate of use of corn?"

You may recall that a principal argument for reducing the price-support level for corn was that it would promote increased consumption. The national average support level was around $1.60 a bushel from 1952 through 1956. Then it was gradually reduced until it was $1.12 this past year.

Prices received by farmers for corn sold at local markets averaged around $1.47 a bushel during the first seven years of the 1950s. The last three corn crops brought $1.12, $1.03 and about $1.00 a bushel, respectively.

The huge disappearance of corn in the past three years, 1957-1959, occurred in spite of an unprecedented increase in the production of other feed grains. Until three years ago, the production of sorghum never exceeded 250 million bushels. In the past three years the output of sorghum grain ranged from 564 million to 610 million bushels, or more than double the biggest previous crops.

The production of barley was far greater in the past three years than in any previous three-year period. The oat crop was small in 1959, but the average for the three years was about normal.

Exports of corn about doubled in the past three years, increasing from less than 100 million bushels a year to over 200 million bushels. There has been little change in the use of corn for food and industrial uses, which take around 265 million bushels annually. Thus the big increase in the use of corn is on farms, as feed for livestock and poultry.

This evidence seems to support the belief that reducing the price of corn has brought about a substantial increase in the use of this grain.

A University of Illinois farm outlook specialist says the 1960 corn crop may sell for around $1.00 a bushel. That's about four cents less than the average received for the 1959 crop.

A University of Illinois livestock specialist reports that cattle and hogs fed protein while they're gleaning cornfields will gain enough weight to more than pay the supplement's cost.

59 Farmers Feted By White Hall Lions Club

WHITE HALL — Fifty-nine farmers of the area were guests of the White Hall Lions Club on Wednesday night with supper at the Presbyterian church, being the annual Farmers Night banquet.

Ben Nunes, president, welcomed the farmers and other guests, and Rev. C. La Vern Justic, pastor, gave the prayer of grace. Lion Carl Kesinger introduced his guest, Charles Pigg of Hillview and Lion W. J. Ritchey introduced his guest, F. R. Mucci, band leader of the local schools.

Lions Grover Sparks and Donald Evans led the songfest with Mrs. Adele Hudson at the piano. Mr. Ritchey presented Miss Janet Beckett, a student of the White Hall High school who sang "Whistling a Happy Tune" and "Getting to Know You," accompanied by Miss Carol Hayes of the White Hall High school faculty.

Lion Julian Hutchens presented John Bickett, of the Greene County Farm Bureau who used a "flip board" in giving up to date information on the latest farm census in the county. He also talked on farm problems and told of the many advantages of the extension service. He showed colored slides of local men on farm tours in Illinois, Colorado and Mississippi.

Farmers drawing cash prizes were John R. Strang, Coy Mansfield and Kenneth Knight. Floyd Kimbro was drawn for the door prize, but was not present, being one of only three Lions absent from the meeting.

A University of Illinois livestock specialist says that, if meat scraps and tankage are cheap enough, they can safely replace half of the soybean meal in corn and fortified soybean meal swine rations.

FROM THE CORN CRIB

Brevity is the soul of law, sometimes. This was recently exemplified by Chief Justice Edgar Murdock of the tax court of the United States in a talk before the Massachusetts Bar Association in which he said he favored writing short opinions when deciding cases.

Illustrating this point, he told of a tax court case in which a taxpayer came into court and testified, "As God is my judge, I do not owe this tax."

The Judge's written opinion in that case declared, "He's not. I am. You do."

Let's Go Birding—

Black Birds That Aren't Black

By Emma Mae Leonhard

All blackbirds are not necessarily balck in the fall. The female and the immature of the Red-wings are brownish; the male Cowbird has a brown head.

The Rusty Blackbird is "rusty" only in the fall. In good light, these Rusty Blackbirds are very attractive in their reddish-brown shawls, covering the heads and forward parts of their bodies.

On the last Saturday in October we saw at least ten Rusties moving among the fallen autumn leaves at the edge of Lake Mauvaisterre, leaves and birds harmonizing perfectly. In fact it is time for the Rusties to move from the northward just when the corn is turning dry and dead in the fields and when the foliage of trees and shrubs puts on the red and gold tints of autumn. Autumn sets a perfect stage for these Rusties.

Rusty Blackbirds come down from the North in small flocks. Whereas the air, the trees, the fields can be blackened with the expanding and massive flocks of Grackles, Starlings, and Red-wings in the autumn, the Rusties will be seen in small flocks nearby. Two Red-wings had joined the small flocks of Rusties which were before us.

Varied Notes

In fact Rusties aren't really too common; we feel lucky when we come upon a few, usually sending out their gurgling, squeaking, whistling, chuckling, and sometimes musical notes. Their song is unhurried; its split creak like that of a rusty hinge alternates with several somewhat musical notes, running together in a gurgle.

When once one has identified this conglomeration of gurgles, he can never mistake it for any other birds' chorus. And of course the bird itself is easily identified—it is a robin-sized Blackbird that isn't black, and it suggests a short-tailed Grackle in shape.

Building Radio From A Kit

By Joseph A. Smith

Part 4: Any Bugs?

By the time you read this section you no doubt have long since completed your building project and, we sincerely hope, have it working in fine style. If not, then in this article we shall make a hint or two pertaining to possible "De-Bugging" of such kits.

The author has found it a wise idea constantly to follow the appropriate pictoral diagram which he mounts on a board; said board is placed directly in front of him on the work bench for ease of reference.

When your kit is completed, STOP! DON'T TURN ON THAT SWITCH YET! Carefully recheck all wiring of the entire unit for mistakes, poor solder joints, loose connections, shorting component parts—Wires etc., omission, etc.

Few indeed are the instances when anyone assembles a kit with out at least one or two "Bugs." Chances are you won't be the exception to the rule!

While the pictoral diagram might be used for making these checks (by checking each wire and connection against that shown in the pictoral diagram), the more experienced constructor probably will check the schematic diagram off wire by wire. For example, you might check the DX-40 in this manner first the entire power supply, second the complete oscillator circuit, next the entire buffer-multiplier circuit, and last the complete amplifier and tuner circuits.

If all appears OK or all apparent errors have been corrected, the filaments should be tried first.

Do they all light up? It not, recheck all filament wiring for correctness, for possible shorts, etc.

If one side of the filament line is grounded at all tube sockets, did you ground one side of each tube socket filament? Does the tube's filament show continuity when tested with a V.O.M.?

Next Troubleshooting.

Mr. Coolie Skink

By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Part 1: Coolie Gets A Scare

Coolie turned about in his neat burrow until he could put his head out the doorway. He never ate inside his home for he preferred to catch his food creeping, crawling, or winging its way about the garden rows.

Housekeeping was much simpler so; only a sweep of his tail or a push with his front feet, brushed away any loose earth that might have crumbled to the floor. For Coolie was a burrowing lizard less than five inches long with the blackest of sharp eyes and the swiftest of four small feet.

He wore a suit of black and grey brocade, almost earth color which made him hard to follow as he scrambled about, and his quickly dodging legs took him faster than most of his enemies could trace.

One morning he heard the great clumpy shoes of the gardener moving about among the tomato plants. Ants scattered here and there so hungry Coolie ventured near.

Suddenly the gardener's swishing hoe dug closely toward Coolie's feet. He zigzagged away so fast that the surprised gardener lost him.

"I'll get him next time!" he promised.

But the next-door neighbor interrupted, "Lizards do not harm plants. They feed on enemy insects." So the gardener changed his mind.

Coolie Finds Friend

For a while Coolie was afraid, until a toad who lived among the beets said, "He wont hurt us, let's hunt together. But I cannot hop as fast as you run. Three or five jumps and I am ready to sit down. How do you do it "

"What" asked the astonished Toad.

"My bones are not right, I can't sit down, only race about or nap on my stomach."

Then, a fearful roar interrupted the two.

Coolie dashed across the driveway calling, "Run if you can!" but the comfortable toad did not move.

"Don't you know that trucks are afraid of wet leaves " he wondered.

With every jump Coolie's feet touched the sun heated rock drive; he leaped farther and faster, waving his tail high in the air to land headfirst in the shade, feet and tail tangled for a moment.

"Why did you do that," Toad questioned again, "Trucks won't come here, and the road is always too hot in the sunshine."

Part 6: Hard Cleaning Job

It was no easy matter to keep the older buildings clean. And while we hear much about crowded conditions in these modern times, I'm sure you will agree we are wonderfully blessed today, when you view the inside of the early one room school.

Where usually from twenty to 50 . . . and sometimes even a few more . . . children and of course their one teacher, lived and learned, in spite of their close quarters. We have to admit they were often far too crowded, but they did furnish a place of learning for many children who are now our oldsters and still some of our efficient and successful business men of these and modern days.

So, as we view the old time school, let us in all fairness give credit to the good things . . . the very root of our present educational system . . . and condemn only that which has been found to be better left behind. Yet never casting aside the many good customs and rules of conduct that marked the slow but steady progress in the past and are still essential to continued progress in any age.

Seats Fastened Down

As for the double seats, they were fastened to the floor by screws or nails, the largest seats were in the rear of the room with the size decreasing until those in the front were small enough for five or six year old children.

It was a very hard matter to sweep and clean underneath and around the old time desks and seats. The teachers, unless they hired one of the older boys to do the sweeping, did the job themselves after school hours or very early of mornings.

Very, very few schools enjoyed the use of sweeping compound, and dust was almost stifling. But the thoughtful teacher used an old type water sprinkler and laid the dust before sweeping.

In later years, some floors were oiled with used oil at the start of school, and sweeping compounds finally came into use. But earlier schools knew only the old water sprinkler.

Wonder World—

Animals With Strange Names

By Rip Barnsdall

The Thylacine

The Thylacine is also known as the marsupial wolf, or marsupial tiger. It is found on the island of Tasmania, off the coast of Australia.

It does most of its hunting at night, going after wallabies, relatives of kangaroos. If it cannot find them, it preys on sheep and poultry.

The female thylacine has a pouch in which the babies, usually four, are carried. The babies are cared for by the mother until they are able to take care of themselves.

The head of the thylacine looks very much like the head of a dog. Brown stripes along the back may remind one of a zebra. A full-grown thylacine is about five feet long, from the nose to the tail.

Tasmanian Devil

The Tasmanian Devil is a bear-like animal, reaching a length of about three feet. It, like the thylacine, is found only on Tasmania.

Even though it has a fearsome sounding name, this animal is not really ferocious. It feeds on such things as rats, mice, frogs, and sometimes raids sheep and chicken farms.

Although bear-like in appearance, the Tasmanian devil has a tail that is about one foot long. Most real bears only have a stump of a tail.

The animal has rather a strange-sounding call. When it calls at night it has an especially eerie sound.

Baby Tasmanian Devils are said to make good pets. They play much like kittens, but are even more playful and affectionate. The babies use both their paws to wash their faces, rubbing them over their heads after licking them thoroughly.

Trim 100 Volunteers Down To 7 Astronauts

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

Many of the conditions which are expected on the first manned orbital flights are similar to those military test pilots experience. So the National Aeronautics and Space Administration looked among the test pilots for the Project Mercury astronaut training program volunteers.

Over 100 military test pilots met the NASA'S general requirements. 69 of these interviewed in Washington, and 50 of them volunteered for Project Mercury. Personal consultations and interviews followed trimming the list of down to 32 men.

In this first phase of the astronaut selection it was very hard for the NASA scientists to decide which astronauts were best for the job. This was because all of the candidates were of high caliber and had good reasons for wanting to become astronauts. During this selection program, the NASA scientists and their advisers decided that seven was the best number of astronauts to have. This would allow each man to participate fully in all the phases of the Project Mercury development.

Right after their Washington interviews the prospective astronauts were assigned to six groups. There were five groups of six men each and one group of two men. One group at a time was sent to the Lovelace Clinic in Alburquerque, New Mexico. There they were given an exhaustive series of examinations.

While the first group was being examined the other men returned to their home stations to wait for their group to be called. The first group started their examinations at the Lovelace Clinic on February 7, 1959. The others got their turn on succeeding Saturday's. Each Astronaut hopeful spent 7½ days and 3 evenings at Lovelace.

Active Test Pilots

The general physical requirements for an astronaut were set up by the NASA Life Sciences Committee. Because all the astronaut candidates were (and still are) active test pilots, no body connected with the NASA expected any of them to be found physically unfit.

The examinations were more for the purpose of seeing which of the men being examined were the most physically fit. This depended on comparing each man with his fellow candidates.

To set up a basis for comparison, the Lovelace program started with a complete aviation and medical history of each man. The program then extended into the following areas:

Hematology and Pathology (the study of the blood and the study of body tissues.

Roentgenology (X-ray study.)

Cardiology (the study of the heart and circulation.)

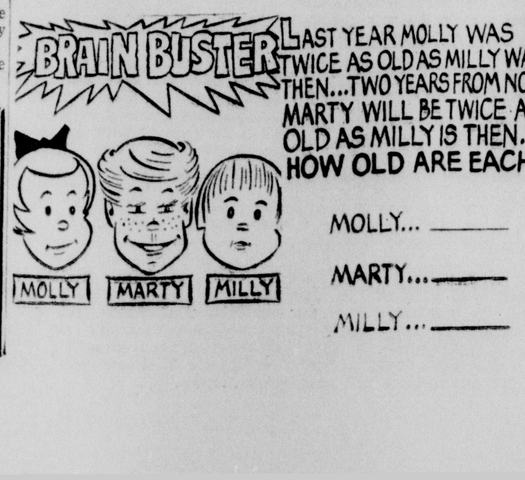
GETS POINT ACROSS

FLORENCE, S. C. (AP) — A Methodist minister, who regularly posts capsule sermons on his church's bulletin board, offered this thought for the last week of July:

"You think it's hot here?"

AS LEGEND HAS IT

BUCYRUS, Ohio (AP) — Eight miles north of here is a village of 115 persons with the Western-sounding name of Broken Sword. According to legend, the village got its name after a soldier stuck his sword in the ground and broke the blade to keep it from the hands of Indians about to capture him.



The Patient

By Mabel Hall Goltra

Lying there in cap and gown
She feels quite like a queen
The cap is very colorful
As all her friends have seen.

The pink rose buds so beautiful
Upon the pale blue cap
Makes life seem much more livable;
Then Daisy takes a nap.

The flowers on the table
Make heaven come within;
The lilacs and chrysanthemums
Were never known to sin.

They fill the room with fragrance
From morning until night
And people do admire them.
All lavender and white.

Earth, Stars and Man (22) In the Beginning

by Don Oakley and John Lane

The story of the origin of life and of man eventually comes to one question: "How did the world itself come to be?"

The great 18th-century French astronomer Laplace theorized that the planets were thrown off by a rapidly rotating sun. But mathematics has shown this to be impossible. Laplace's older countryman, the naturalist Count Buffon, thought a comet may have passed close to the sun, drawing out material that formed the planets.

In the 20th-century, the American geologist Thomas Chamberlain substituted a passing star for the comet. He believed that the planets began as bits of matter called "planetesimals." The planets formed cold, later heating up through pressure and radioactivity.

Modern thinking has kept the idea of cold planetesimals but rejected the theory of a collision or near collision with another star. The planets contain different proportions of the elements than the sun and therefore could not have been formed from matter torn out of it.

Most scientists today agree that both sun and planets condensed at the same time from a cloud of hydrogen and other particles. The way it happened has to do with the behavior of ionized (electrified) gases and magnetic fields. Not a few astronomers believe that most stars similar to our sun have a family of planets. And the chances are that many of these planets are in the right position with respect to their suns to allow life to gain a foothold.

The moon may hold clues to how our solar system began, because that body is relatively unchanged since its creation. A series of "Ranger" rockets is planned to be sent to the moon in 1961. Some of the rockets will make seismic recordings to determine its structure.

On a vaster scale, the way in which the solar system formed is illustrated by the way galaxies evolve. Galaxies, like our Milky Way, are great collections of stars (some 200 billion in the Milky Way). There are literally millions of galaxies within range of our telescopes, in different stages of development—perhaps, also, with stars harboring life in different forms.

bus, sitting in a doctor's office, before a concert—every minute is put to use to satisfy an avid mind. If one does not wish to outline a course for himself there are guides available. The famous Harvard Book-shelf with its volumes of great literature is a storehouse to be drawn upon.

Books Change World

A small volume by Robert B. Downs called "Books that Changed the World" holds a challenge for exploration. Anyone who seeks to understand the present would do well to ponder the books he has chosen by Machiavelli, Thomas Paine, Adam Smith, Malthus, Marx' Das Kapital and Hitler's Mein Kamp have been chosen, with scientists Copernicus, Sir Isaac Newton, Darwin, Freud and Einstein. What depth of understanding would come from pursuing such a list as an adventure in adult education!

Clifton Fadiman has a book just off the press called "A Lifetime Reading Plan," an elaboration of a list of 100 books which was printed in News Week April 12, 1959. The list created such an interest that at the publisher's request, Mr. Fadiman has supplemented the list, giving a short, pithy resume' of each book to whet one's appetite. Once embarked on such a program, immeasurable satisfactions are ahead—all to be had, in our world of public libraries, for the taking!

ADULT EDUCATION CAN CHANGE YOUR LIFE . . .
Many persons in your town find their lives sparked with new vigor and interest when they enter adult education programs in their nearby schools.
Senior citizens develop new hobbies, new friends, and new skills. Young people who have dropped out of high school, return to complete their education, and thus advance to better jobs. AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK
November 6-12, 1960

Mrs. Eddy Reminds Us Books Open New World To All, Young And Old

This is the last in a series of articles written by persons interested in American Education Week, Nov. 6-12. The author is Mrs. Sherwood Eddy, Senior Citizen, World Traveler and Lecturer.

It is foolish to think that one's education is ever finished. Each day learning goes on. But what kind of learning is it? Without some effort on our part we cannot hope to grow in wisdom, grace and depth of perception. With effort, using the wealth of opportunities available in our public schools, colleges and libraries, there are limitless possibilities.

For those who want formal class work to complete an interrupted course or to gain the training necessary for a vocation there are day and night classes. Advanced degrees are recognized by increased economic return as well as in the satisfaction of personal achievement. Enrollment in a craft class may uncover a talent that can develop into an unexpected livelihood as a by-product of creative accomplishment.

Our library cooperates in The Great Books series that, participated in over a period of years, assures an understanding of the literary giants who have influenced their times and all time.

It is also possible, if the urge and discipline are there, for any individual to set for himself a reading course and embark on his own adventure in adult education. I know one person who has retired and has outlined for himself a three-year course that will acquaint or re-acquaint him with the world's great literature. Wherever he goes there is a book in his pocket (worse for the pocket, but who cares?). Waiting for a

With The Girl Scouts

One of the biggest, most exciting events in Girl Scouting in our nation will be taking place next week in St. Louis—the meeting of National Council which is held every three years. This is a rare occasion when the meeting is being held so near to our Council area.

Many local groups in the four counties of Illinois Prairie Council are making plans to attend as visitors one or more days. A $2 fee is required for each day visited, the only credential being your Girl Scout membership card. Be sure you are registered and carry your card with you at all times.

Delegates from our Council are Mrs. Howard Choate, Mrs. Jack Wise and Mrs. Robert Hartman and Mrs. George McNamara is registered as a full-time visitor. These ladies will attend all sessions, Monday through Friday, Nov. 14-18 at Kiel auditorium in St. Louis.

Several training sessions were held for the delegates and interested visitors regarding the issues to be voted upon at the National Council.

Don't miss this wonderful once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to see Girl Scouting in action on a national level even for just part of a day.

Mrs. Charles U. Culmer, national president, will be presented with a bouquet of Girl Scout roses at the convention (remember our Blossoms for the Birthday Years) and the podium of Kiel auditorium will be decorated with the roses. St. Louis will receive a gift of Girl Scout rose bushes to start a Gold Blossom Girl Scout garden at the City Hall Plaza.

Membership News

Here's another exciting item for Girl Scouts in this area. As of November 1st there are 93 Girl Scout troops registered in Illinois Prairie Council and the membership is 1,344 girls. In addition there are over 400 adults registered in our Council. These figures represent the largest membership ever attained in Illinois Prairie Council.

Two neighborhood meetings will be held this week—be sure to attend the one to which you belong. These sessions are planned to be of special help to leaders, their assistants and troop committee mothers.

Scott County Neighborhood, Mrs. Merton L. Pond of Bluffs, chairman, will meet Wednesday, November 16 at 1:30 p.m. at Bluffs Methodist church. All registered adults in Scott county are urged to attend.

SENTIMENTAL ME

by Janet Henry

The greatest treasures that I own
Are tucked inside my jewelry case;
A pendant with a precious stone,
A locket with a precious face,

A letter, folded carefully,
An emerald brooch, two high school rings,
A silver coin, a college "key,"
Some slightly tarnished Air Corps wings.

Are two of Christy's baby teeth.

Jacksonville Neighborhood will meet at 9:30 a.m. on Thursday, November 17, at the Scout office. Mrs. Frank Clay of Jacksonville is Neighborhood chairman.

Two neighborhood meetings were held last week—one on Monday at the home of Mrs. Howard Houlette of Greenfield. This was the Greene County Neighborhood of which Mrs. Bud Roth of Carrollton is chairman. Leaders were present from Roodhouse, Carrollton, Eldred and Greenfield.

Cass County Neighborhood meeting was held at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 10, in Beardstown. Mrs. Walter Lohman of Ashland is chairman. Several Beardstown leaders attended. Tentative plans were made for before and after the holidays.

The Board of Directors of Illinois Prairie Council met Wednesday morning at the Scout office with a good attendance of members. Several important decisions regarding policy were made and final instructions were given to the delegates to National Council. Mrs. George McNamara reported on a Senior Conference which she and her daughter, Senior Scout Jocelyn McNamara, attended in Gary, Indiana, last weekend. Over 700 persons were present for the two-day event. Mrs. Ralph Sullivan, president, was in charge of the Board meeting.

Troop News

Intermediate Troop 104 of Beardstown, Mrs. Barbara Lawson leader, enjoyed a trip to the pine grove sand farm near Arenzville last week. The group was taken by car to the farm and then hiked two miles through the groves. The girls were amazed at the beauty of the groves and collected many pine cones for future use in Christmas decorations and favors. Fifteen girls made the trip, there were three guests and four leaders, Mrs. Lawson, Mrs. Greg Sinnock, Mrs. Ben Goldsmith and Mrs. Cleon Wells. When the group returned from the hike, the leaders served hot chocolate, Kool-aide and cookies. Ann Lawson is the troop reporter.

Brownie Troop 86 of Lincoln school in Jacksonville observed the first birthday of the troop at a special party recently at the school. It was also a Halloween masquerade party and the group took time out from the party to go see Gov. Stratton, when his helicopter landed on the school grounds. A birthday cake was cut and served after a program of songs and games. Preceding the visit to Gov. Stratton, the leader discussed the American flag and patriotism.

Mrs. Harvey Leake is the new leader of this troop. She was assisted at the party by Mrs. Orville Wheatley and Mrs. Laverne Whitton.

Intermediate Troop 46 of Lincoln school enjoyed a cook-out last weekend at the Girl Scout cabin on Lake Jacksonville. Mrs. John Newcomb is the new leader of the troop.

This troop and Troop 16 of South Jacksonville school, Mrs. C. W. Nicholson, leader, took part in a service project at Passavant Hospital Nursing Home bazaar held Thursday, Nov. 10. The girls made Christmas decorations and small gift items which were sold; the entire proceeds from the sale went to Passavant Hospital.

Troop 82 of Lincoln school, Mrs. Lee Gillis and Mrs. Joseph Podeschi leaders, will hold their investiture on Friday, Nov. 18, at the school.

Rx For A Beautiful Complexion

By ALICIA HART
Written For NEA

The one essential ingredient for a beautiful skin at any age is cleanliness. This is a rule which applies equally to the little girl of two and the woman in her sixties.

No amount of make-up will hide a poor skin. And, sometimes, it will only serve to emphasize blotches. To glow, to have that fresh, translucent look, skin must be kept scrupulously clean.

This means that each time you apply fresh make-up, the old make-up must come off. If your skin tends to be dry, stay away from hot water. Use tepid water and a lanolin soap. Rinse your face with clear water, not with the water you've just washed in.

Keep your washcloths and towels as clean as your skin. Ideally, they should be changed daily. But if you can't manage this, change them three times a week.

If your skin is dry, it will tend to have that crawly feeling after each washing. But this doesn't mean you should pass up soap and water. It does mean that after each washing, you should make use of a light moisturizing lotion, one which is not sticky or greasy.

And at night, before you go to bed, make use of a really rich cream compounded for very dry skin. Don't neglect your neck when you're creaming your face. Or one day, you may look in the mirror and wonder why on earth your face should look smooth while your neck looks crepey.

Absolute cleanliness is the basis for a beautiful skin. This means a thorough face sudsing to remove stale make-up, as this girl is doing. And it means that fresh make-up must never be applied over skin which is not clean.

The group purchased a piano and are getting two new tables and having two chairs upholstered for the lounge.

Mrs. Dean Artman and little son, Eric, plan to leave the first of the week for Memphis, Tenn. to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Kent Swofford. She is going especially at this time to see "Buss Stop" in which Kent has the leading role.

Should Commercial Pros Handle Raising Of Funds For Churches

By JULES LOH

NEW YORK (AP)—Tambourines still jingle on street corners and humble nuns remain at their familiar posts, but across the land the chore of church fund raising has become more and more the business of commercial pros.

Some churchmen and churchgoers deplore the trend; others see it not only as a necessity but a boon.

Advocates have found that professionally conducted campaigns usually don't last as long, are more efficient and demand less time of volunteer church committees.

This year America's churches will collect about $3.5 billion with about one billion of it earmarked for new construction.

Experts estimate 70 per cent of the sum will come through formal campaigns directed for the most part by commercial firms or professionally trained churchmen.

The Rev. Davis Rice Holt III, in a master's thesis at Union Theological Seminary of Virginia, believes professional fund raising methods often involve spurious explanations of scripture and promote the Pharisaism of conspicuous pledging.

Commercial organizations, he said, often are pagan in nature and operate on a profit motive with their only objective getting the money, period.

Dr. T. K. Thompson, director of stewardship for the National Council of Churches, takes a directly opposite view:

"Retaining professional counsel for fund raising is not essentially different from retaining architectural counsel in the construction of a new church building," he said.

But Dr. Thompson insists commercial firms must maintain certain ethical standards if they would get a church's business.

Church and church related construction—still riding the crest of a wave born a decade ago—is the main reason for the emergence of the professional fund raiser in the nation's churches.

This is really a tough luck hand. You can't blame South for trying for a slam or for planning to bid the slam should North show up with an ace. The chance that North would show up with three hearts was too small to worry about.

This hand illustrates the greatest weakness of Blackwood. Once you use Blackwood you are committed to playing for eleven tricks or more and because there is no bonus for bidding five of a major you would much prefer to stop at four any time you miss two aces.

The Gerber convention is similar to the Blackwood, except that it uses a four club bid to ask for aces. A four diamond response shows no aces or four aces; a four heart response shows one; four spades shows two; and four no-trump, three.

Playing Gerber South would ask for aces by bidding four clubs. North would respond four diamonds to show none and South would stop safely at four spades.

Move Over Las Vegas, Here Comes Jackpot, Nevada's New Gambling Town

JACKPOT, Nev. (AP)—Jackpot, Nevada's gambling boomtown in the sagebrush, is the newest monument to the axiom that some people enjoy losing their money if there's a chance they'll win.

The colorful and controversial cluster of casinos ½ mile south of the Nevada-Idaho line started from zero when Idaho outlawed its slot machines in 1954.

"There wasn't anything here but sagebrush and broomgrass," says one Jackpotite.

Now the 24-hour multimillion-dollar houses of chance entertain thousands of pleasure-seekers yearly with 330 slot machines, four pits of 21, roulette and dice tables, along with keno and wheels of fortune.

The offering also includes some of the finest food in the state—some of it free and the rest next-to-free stage shows, and dancing

"We couldn't exist if Idaho was not so dull," says John Wilkes, a co-owner of Diamond Jim's, who once operated in Idaho. He said Idahoans occasionally want to escape their restrictions on gambling and drinking and break the monotony of life.

Unlike the casinos of Las Vegas and Reno, there's a small town atmosphere in Jackpot despite the plushness and frills. You can meet 50 people in an hour with no formal introduction.

The pint-sized community of trailer homes wants to be left alone to develop the trappings of an ordinary city—a city hall, schools and even the curse of street assessments.

But complaints from rival gamblers in Elko, about 100 miles away, have forced state gaming authorities to wonder if border operations might hurt Nevada's legalized gambling industry as a whole.

At the request of Elko county commissioners, the state gaming control board launched an investigation and their report to the parent state gaming commission is expected soon.

The Jackpot gamblers won't say much in reply to the Elko criticism in hopes the issue may die. But they insist their busses carry Idahoans who wouldn't go to Elko anyhow just for one night.

Even some Salt Lake City people make the five-hour drive to Jackpot instead of Elko, which is 20 miles closer.

Jackpot had five casinos and one separate bar but the field was narrowed when Tex's Gateway Club burned last month at a loss of some $150,000.

A sewage plant is under construction and a $45,000 school will be built next spring for the 60-odd school-age children now bused to Contact, Nev., 18 miles away.

Six Jackpot families recently built houses, but most of the 400 residents live in trailers because the FHA and banks don't think Jackpot is here to stay and won't approve building loans.

At state insistence, the town levied a $3 fee on each game and slot to pay a special sheriff's deputy. So far he hasn't needed a jail.

The Horsehu Club was the first to be built at the isolated site. The Club 93, Cactus Pete's, the now-defunct Tex's Gateway, and Diamond Jim's followed. Competition is brisk but not bitter.

My closest competitor is 47 miles away. It's nice," says Gammel.

Some of the clubs offer free meals and others induce trade with lotteries on auto license numbers. Stage entertainment is mostly country music but dance groups and sophisticated comedians also hold forth.

Cactus Pete flies in fresh seafood from Seattle once weekly for a seafood buffet.

The rest of the week Pete offers a fantastic buffet of prime rib, sirloin, baked ham, prawns, shrimp, salmon, anchovies, a variety of salads, oysters, home-baked bread and pastries, and dozens of other choices. The heap sells for $2.

Despite all the attacks, most Jackpotites are confident of the town's future and expansion seems certain once the gambling status is cleared.

Gaming revenue in Elko County including Elko and Jackpot now runs between $4 and $5 million a year and increased by $100,000 during the first 6 months of this year.

But even with all the action in Jackpot, residents miss the trimmings of other towns: They are planning a golf course.

Who Got Farmers' Votes In This Election?

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Arguments as to how farmers voted in Tuesday's presidential election will continue in the weeks and months ahead.

The issue could have an important bearing on future farm legislation if not on future congressional and presidential elections.

President-elect John F. Kennedy lost most of the important midwestern farm belt states to his Republican opponent, Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Democrats had made a strong bid for these states on the basis of decines of farm prices and income during the Eisenhower administration and criticisms of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

Some farm groups which supported Kennedy say it is incorrect to say that Midwestern farmers voted Republican. They say an early analysis of the voting shows that as compared with the 1952 and 1956 elections, the shift in votes from the Republican to the Democratic Party was greater in the farm states than in the industrial states. They say that the farm-state shift averaged around 10 per cent compared with 5 per cent in industrial states.

The shift in North Dakota, for example, was said to have been about 17 per cent.

Officials of the National Farmers Union, which strongly backed Kennedy, claim that a majority of the farm-belt producers voted for Kennedy. The only reason their states stayed in the Republican column, they say, was strong support given Nixon by votes in towns and cities as well as rural non-farm voters.

Certainly, it will be in the interest of backers of the Kennedy farm program to show, if they can, that farmers really voted for the president-elect. Otherwise, this program might run into deep trouble in Congress.

Opponents of the Kennedy farm plan—which envisions greater government intervention in agriculture and stricter production controls than were advocated by the present administration—will be expected to argue that farmers, in effect, vetoed the Kennedy plan at Tuesday's election.

Meanwhile, farm leaders began to speculate on Kennedy's secretary of agriculture. Kennedy has promised the post will go to a midwesterner. A number of names are being bandled about. It is generally assumed the choice will be a man with a political background. That's because Kennedy will need a secretary who will be able to deal with a Congress which expects to look with no great enthusiasm to his farm plan.

Those being mentioned include Gov. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin; Gov. Herschel Loveless of Iowa; Gov. Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota; Gov. George Docking of Kansas; and Herbert Waters, administrative assistant to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota. Loveless lost Tuesday in a race for senator while both Freeman and Docking were defeated for re-election.

Joseph Levine To Receive To Cinematic Citation, Motion Picture Pioneer Of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — In the hands of Joseph E. Levine, money takes on an abstract, cabalistic glory unknown to the ordinary mortal with job, wife, youngsters and clutch of unpaid bills.

"If you start thinking of money as money, you'll never spend it like you should," says Levine, a movie promoter.

"You can't play scared in this business. It's sort of like being in Vegas where they use chips instead of cash."

Gambling has no part, however, in his operating credo which, simply put, is: "To make a lot of money, you spend a lot."

With expensive, high-octane mixtures of promotion, advertising and massive market saturation, Levine has racked up impressive box office records.

A short, round man of 55, Levine on Nov. 21 receives a top cinematic citation — Motion Picture Pioneer of the Year. Previous recipients include Adolf Zukor, Cecil B. De Mille, Spyros Skouras and Barney Balaban.

"Pretty good for a guy out of New England just five years," he comments on this and other industry honors.

Levine's career is entering a new phase. Formerly a buyer of other men's merchandise, he is embarked on producing his own films. Five are in various stages of construction. He markets films in England, other parts of the British Commonwealth, next year invades Germany.

On five recent films, Levine estimates, his Embassy Pictures Corp. expended $5 million. Thus far, 12¾ millions have grossed back into company coffers.

Some of these days, he says, he is going to spend $4½ million to ignite one box office blaze—"In one week my gross share of receipts can be $5 million, in two weeks $10 million."

Levine has been around the trade since he quit the ready-made clothing business 25 years ago. But until a film named "Attila" came along, he was simply a respectable, small-time theater operator and exhibitor.

Levine bought the American rights to "Attila" for $100,000. The pseudo-historic epic of blood and thunder had been lying around for four years in Italy.

Firing an opening broadside of exploitation, Levine reaped a $2-million yield.

Notable milestones since have been "Godzilla," a Japanese film (his gross, $1¼ million); "Hercules" ($5 million); and "Hercules Unchained" ($3 million)

Levine's answer to those who question the caliber of the pictures he sells is his experience with "Jack the Ripper," a horror screamie on which he lavished $1¼ million in promotional effort. It turned out to be one of his rare disappointments but even he learned a lesson.

"You can advertise your fool head off and the public won't buy a film they don't like," he says. "Generally, I'll say this about my pictures. A guy needs some kind of escape from his life today. He doesn't want any of these so-called message pictures.

"What he wants is what the critics call corny. I don't say I like it, or I don't like it. But I'm in business. People from 8 to 80 who like those pictures are the ones who support the movies — not the intellectuals."

White Hall City Council Requests Water Treatment

WHITE HALL — The regular meeting of the City Council was held Tuesday night with minutes of the last meeting read by City Clerk Nova Lyons, and approved and claims against the city allowed.

The members decided to contact the State Conservation Dept. relative to treating the city reservoir with roteone. It was also decided that the American Vitrified Products Company be contacted relative to a previous offer to grant the city, the property formerly occupied by the White Hall Electric Railway Company.

Several additional city gas taps, providing limited service, will be made and the council members voted to extend the city sewer to the west end of Central Street, for accommodation of new residents along the new street running from Central Street to Centennial Avenue.

Mrs. Ruby Brown was admitted to the White Hall Hospital on Thursday for medical care.

Allen Dawdy, who was sent to Alton Memorial Hospital for treatment of hip injuries, has been transferred to Scott Field Air Base Hospital and will undergo hip surgery early this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold King of San Diego, Calif., are parents of a third daughter, Timberly Ann, born Oct. 27th, weight 6 pounds, 12 ounces at birth. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bunting of Hillview are maternal grandparents and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bertram of this city paternal grandparents.

Plan Holiday Season

Plans are going forward to beautify the city of Roodhouse for the coming holiday season. Last year some complained that nothing was done to add to the decorations.

This year already eight large plastic illuminated bells have been ordered to be placed at the four corners of the square and three on Palm street. The 24 new light poles will be decorated with red and silver metal garlands which will add a sparkling touch to catch the eye. New plastic ribbon is being ordered to adorn the candy canes with attractive bows.

The Roodhouse Community Christmas Association feels that these additions will add much in color and attractiveness to the town. The Association is working in close cooperation with employees at the City Hall who each year furnish the labor to put up and take down the decorations.

This planning for Christmas has gone forth believing that the merchants and citizens of Roodhouse want a beautiful town to attract outsiders to the city. Thus it is hoped that merchants, citizens, and various organizations will be liberal in their contributions to undergird this program. Make out checks to the Roodhouse Community Association and mail them to the treasurer, Rev. H. L. Janvrin. Your interest can be shown by your gift.

Fashions Meant For Winter Sports

They're Pretty And They're Practical

Exercise, indoors and outdoors, is just as important in winter as in summer. This year, you'll find fashions keyed to your favorite sport. Fashion comes at last to the bowling lanes (left). This bowler wears culottes and overblouse designed for action in featherweight pinwale corduroy. For exercise on ice, there's this princess jumper (center) in leopard-printed corduroy worn over beige wool shirt. This skier looks sleek (right) in blue-and-black striped corduroy parka match to blue stretch pants. This striped topper can be worn effectively with black pants as well.

BY GAILE GUGAS
NEA Womein's Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — If you don't dig the idea of culottes for street wear, you'll find that you can wear them with perfect ease when you go bowling this winter.

They're an obvious choice for bowling, a sport much neglected by designers until this season. Culottes allow you to look and act a lady when you bowl. Quite often, they keep company with overblouses that are cut long enough not to ride up in action. And they're cut from resilient fabrics: feather-weight pinwale corduroy, ribbed cotton knits and wool challis.

The estimated number of women bowlers in this country is eleven million. And, until this year, they've had a difficult time finding clothes which allowed them to look pretty and be comfortable in action. Bowling bags and shoes are getting the fashion treatment, too.

Both snow bunnies and those who are experts on skis will look alike this winter, thanks to handsome but inexpensive ski wear. Sleek stretch pants now fit into the budget of even the occasional ski weekender. And to wear with them, there are parkas of fake fur, corduroy or pretty quilted cotton.

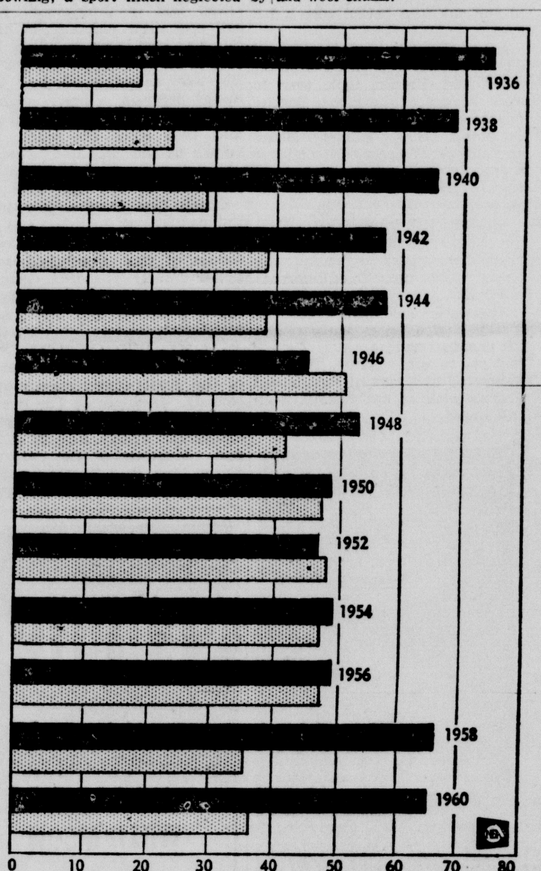
Modern ice rinks are opening overnight in suburban shopping centers. If you're learning to skate, dress the part. It's fun. The short jurper dress in flannel or corduroy worn over a sweater or wool skirt is both pretty and practical.



THE NEW SENATE—When President-elect John F. Kennedy takes office in January, he will have the backing of a strong Democratic majority in the Senate. The Republicans elected 13 senators, the Democrats 21. The new Senate will be comprised of 36 Republicans, 64 Democrats. In 11 of the last 13 Congresses (Newschart) — 1946 and 1952 excepted — Democrats have been the party in power.

DROPS IN AT HOME

KINGSTREE, S. C. (AP) — Douglas James, 19, dropped in at his home for dinner one day recently from 2,500 feet above via a strawberry pink parachute.

The youthful sky diver had meant to land in a field a considerable distance from home and had his mother, Mrs. A. K. James, stationed there to drive him home for the mid-day meal.

The ginkgo tree, often called a living fossil, is an authentic link with the time of the dinosaurs. Scientists believe ginkgos grew on the continent 100 to 200 million years ago.

Plan Open House For Waverly Woman, 100

WAVERLY—Mrs. Anna E. Allen of Waverly will celebrate her 100th birthday anniversary on Saturday, Nov. 19. On that date, Open House will be held in Mrs. Allen's honor in the basement of the Waverly Methodist church, from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

The members of Waverly Rebekah lodge, and other friends and neighbors of Mrs. Allen are uniting in carrying out arrangements for this happy occasion, and are planning to make the day a memorable one for Mrs. Allen. All her friends in nearby communities are given a cordial invitation to attend the open house and greet Mrs. Allen.

Mrs. Allen was born north of Greenfield Nov. 19, 1860, her parents being Dr. D. R. C. and Jane Saylor Nead. She was married to Edward G. Allen, near Modesto, Sept. 9, 1880. They lived on their farm near Modesto until 1911, when they moved to Modesto. After the Modesto cyclone in 1917, Mr. and Mrs. Allen moved to Waverly, where Mr. Allen passed away Nov. 15, 1932.

In 1938 Mrs. Allen went to the home of the late Louis A. Turner and his sister, Miss Edith as housekeeper. She still resides there, caring for her home and doing all her housework, being in remarkably good health for one of her advanced age. Both Mr. Turner and sister are deceased.

Mrs. Allen has two sons, Rolland Allen, who resides in Decatur, and Clarence Allen, of Grand Forks, N. D. She has six grandchildren, 11 great grandchildren and 12 great-great-grandchildren. One daughter, Mrs. Maude Haynes, is deceased. Mrs. Allen is a member of the Waverly Methodist church; Waverly Rebekah lodge, of which she is a Past Noble Grand, and Waverly Eastern Star Chapter.

Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's Choice For Press Secretary

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cigar - chomping Pierre Salinger will be the "Jim Hagerty" of President-elect John F. Kennedy's administration.

Kennedy announced that Salinger, his press secretary through the arduous election campaign, would take over Hagerty's post as press secretary in the White House.

A former newspaperman himself, Salinger is known to reporters as an energetic, available and articulate liaison man between Kennedy and themselves.

He is 35 years old, stocky, and always on the go.

He bursts into the Kennedy headquarters pressroom with cigar smoke trailing behind and glances at scribbled notes. Then he reels off the latest intelligence—maybe headline news or incidental information.

Then he answers questions. He gives the impression he can answer most of them on his own without further consulation with Kennedy.

Salinger started out in life as a prodigy pianist. He gave a recital at the Toronto International Exposition in 1931.

He gave up his formal musical career because his parents objected to the long hours of practice and wanted him to have "a more normal life," a goal hardly borne out by life in politics.

Salinger, like Kennedy, was a World War II Navy man in the Pacific, but their paths did not cross until years later.

A Californian, Salinger was working on the San Francisco Chronicle when he took leave in 1943 to command a submarine chaser.

He participated in a daring rescue of 14 members of a patrol boat crew stranded on a sand spit in Buckner Bay at Okinawa in the midst of a 1945 typhoon.

For this he won the Navy-Marine Corps Medal—the same medal Kennedy won for his rescue efforts in behalf of his crew when his patrol boat was chopped in half by a Japanese destroyer.

Salinger, doing an article on James R. Hoffa, now president of the Teamsters Union, visited Washington and talked with Kennedy's brother, Robert, who was investigating Hoffa for the Senate.

Collier's folded in December 1956. Salinger was the first investigator hired by Robert Kennedy when the Senate rackets committee started work in February 1957. The president-elect was a member of the committee and that led to their association.

"I'm actually still a reporter," Salinger says of his present job. "I see my job as an intermediary to get the senator's views to the press and assist the press in getting his views."

Roodhouse Triumphs Over White Hall, 33-0

The yearly grid rivalry closes the season for both aggregations.

After a scoreless first quarter deadlock, Gary Whewell hit paydirt from six yards out and made the extra point off tackle to give Roodhouse a lead that held up, for the remainder of the game.

Later in the period Whewell scored on a one yard pitchout with Lyle Winters getting the extra point for a 14-0 halftime lead.

Roodhouse tallied again in the third canto on an off tackle smash by Dave Tarton. After reversing his field Tarton covered 45 yards for the score. The PAT was no good and the Railroaders held a commanding 20-0 spread.

The winners hit paydirt twice in the final chapter on a 10 yard pass from Winters to Jack Vinyard and a 36 yard off-tackle jaunt by Whewell. Only one of the two extra point attempts was good, this being a Winters to David Israel pass.

Roodhouse amassed 18 first downs to the losers' four and the Railroaders had the honor of not having to punt once during the contest.

Four seniors played their final tilt for Coach Max McIntyre's Maroons and they were Byron Taylor, Eddie Baker, Bill Blake and Arthur Reveal.

No Pheasants Startle Hunters In Jersey County

JERSEYVILLE — The pheasant hunting season opened in Jersey county Friday and will close November 30th. A few hunters went to areas where years ago one might find a pheasant in the hope that a bird or two might have strayed back into the locality.

None of the hunters returning from the trek late Friday afternoon reported having even seen a pheasant. The species is extinct so far as Jersey county is concerned.

All efforts at restoring the pheasants to the Jersey county locality in recent years have proved unsuccessful. Live birds have been released, but soon left the area.

The last pheasants in any number were to be found in the Elsah Township vicinity and in the locality of the Reddish Ford in northern Richwood Township.

Lewistown Trips Havana, 20-14

LEWISTOWN — Havana bowed to the host eleven here Friday afternoon in an annual Armistice Day rivalry, 20-14, in the final game of the season for both squads. The contest was a Spoon River affair and Lewistown showed six wins against two defeats and one tie for the year.

Coach Ken Weeks' Ducks suffered their fourth loss against four wins and one tie.

All the scoring came in the first three quarters of play. In the final stanza, Havana fumbled on Lewistown's one foot line with two minutes left in the contest. Time ran out on the Ducks following a punt as they drove to the 10 yard line but the contest ended here.

Terry Workman garnered Havana's first tally with a one yard plunge in the initial stanza and he also collected the PAT for a 7-0 lead. The winners roared back to knot the count on a 52 yard run by Jack White and his extra point plunge.

White scored again in the second canto but missed the extra point while Havana was held in check and the Ducks trailed at halftime, 13-7.

Havana's Jim Cohee scored from five yards out and Thetus Siltman got the point after in the third quarter to end Havana's scoring.

Bald Eagle Commands International Run

By JOHN CHANDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAUREL, Md. (AP)—Bald Eagle led all the way and won the Washington (D. C.) International Friday for a record second straight time in another mixed up global horse race that saw a Russian rider try to claim foul and a top French colt toss his jockey right at the start.

This was the ninth running of the gallop for $100,000 on the infield grass course at Laurel Park.

Bald Eagle flashed home two lengths ahead of the Sag-J. E. Stable's Harmonizing, second United States horse in the field of 11 from six nations.

The Soviet entry of Zabeg and Zadorny came home third and fourth and it was near the finish that the Russians claimed they encountered dirty work at the crossroads. The jockey on Zabeg said Harmonizing bothered his mount, but the stewards failed to notice his attempt to claim foul when he unsaddled.

Bald Eagle, who ran the mile and a half turf course in 2 minutes, 33 seconds—five seconds slower than his winning time a year ago, paid $5.40, $3.80 and $2.80.

Moyer Takes Aim On Win

NEW YORK (AP)—Phil Moyer, the middleweight of the fighting Moyer family of Portland, Ore., aims for his fifth straight victory Saturday night in a television 10-rounder with Cuba's Florentino Fernandez at Madison Square Garden.

Despite his four consecutive wins—all this year—Moyer was rated an 8-5 underdog to the stiff-punching Cuban.

Fernandez has a record of 21 knockouts in 29 fights.

Moyer, 24, has a record of 23-3-1. The bout starts at 10 p.m., EST, and will be telecast (ABC-TV) coast to coast.

WRITER SETS MEETING

NEW YORK (AP) — Playwright Eugene Ionesco sends word he'll be in New York for the opening of his play, "Rhinoceros," starring Eli Wallach, Zero Mostel and Anne Jackson.

Ionesco informed producer Leo Kerz he anticipates being here Nov. 1 for pre-production conferences. The French playwright currently is in Rio, where he is on a lecture tour.

PUBLIC OPINION SOUGHT

NEW YORK (AP)—Critics panned "Top Secret" and, under normal conditions, the play would quickly fold and steal away into the night.

But, Mrs. Ida Lublenski Ehrlich, who wrote the play about Nazis, is determined to keep it running indefinitely at the Barbizon Plaza Theater. She has invited the public to attend without cost.

"I want them to see if the play is really as bad as the critics say," Mrs. Ehrlich explains. "After all, it's the opinion of the public that I want."

Spartans Grab 6th Big 10 Title In Cross Country

CHICAGO (AP)—Gerald Young's record-smashing individual triumph Friday paced Michigan State to its sixth Big Ten cross country title in a row.

Young defeated such favored Spartan teammates as Billy Reynolds and Morgan Ward with his clocking of 19 minutes, 35.3 seconds on Washington Park's four-mile course.

Finishing 20 yards ahead of Iowa's Jim Tucker, Young shattered the former course record of 19:40.5, set by Iowa's Rich Ferguson in 1952. Ward was third, Illinois' Ken Brown fourth and Reynolds fifth.

The Spartans took 1st, 3rd, 5th, 11th and 13th places for a winning total of 30 points.

Iowa was second with 61; Indiana third with 65, Wisconsin fourth with 96, Minnesota fifth with 103, and Ohio State sixth with 125. Illinois and Northwestern did not score because they lacked full teams. Michigan and Purdue did not compete.

Michigan State has won every Big Ten cross country meet except one in its 10 years of Big Ten competition. Michigan won in 1954.

The Spartans Monday will shoot for their fifth successive AC4A title in New York.

Hardin Tromps Pleasant Hill

PLEASANT HILL—Roger Smith ran around left end early in the first quarter Friday afternoon for the first and only score Pleasant Hill was able to make as they lost an Illinois Valley Conference tilt to Hardin, 32-7. Taylor Steinberg plunged through center for the PAT and Pleasant Hill was able to end the first period with a 7-0 lead.

From the onset of the second quarter, however, it was a different story and Hardin took over to lead the rest of the game. Touchdowns in the next three quarters by Bland, Davis, Holloway, Bland and Sleeper, respectively, and two successful PAT attempts gave the visiting squad its 32 total for the game.

Pleasant Hill intercepted a Hardin pass in the third and Bob Robertson ran it back to the end zone only to have the TD nullified via a penalty.

The victors now have a record of 6 wins and 3 losses while except for one tie the Pleasant Hill entry has yet to win a game. They are hampered by a lack of experienced players with no upperclassmen on the squad.

GOOD DEAL SOURS

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — A Tucson man had a two-way business deal going until police stepped in.

Cecilro Rakestraw, 62, was contracted to haul farm workers to and from their jobs. On the way home each night, officers said, Rakestraw would sell his passengers wine for one dollar a pint. He had purchased the liquor for half that price.

Rakestraw was charged with selling liquor without a permit.

BREAKING AN OLD SAW

KINGSTREE, S. C. (AP) — Don't tell DeWitt Joye that old adage about lightning never striking twice in the same place. His seven-year-old brick home has been struck three times in four years, and damaged each time.

The latest strike burned up a bed, tore holes in a plaster ceiling, scorched a washing machine and knocked out service on two telephones.

THE STORY: At the last session of her night school class, Janet Hamilton, a young widow, learns that the instructor, Jason Whiting, with whom she has formed a friendship, is married. She leaves him abruptly, but when she arrives home she finds Jason already there, talking to Gerry Anderson, the young sitter who stays with Mrs. Hamilton's two small sons. After Gerry leaves, Jason says he loves Janet and asks her to marry him when he is free.

XII

He finished his drink and said, "I wish I could just recite 'Four score and seven years ago our forefathers . . .' instead of trying to tell you about a youthful ass who made a hasty ill-advised marriage that hasn't mattered enough for him to try and do anything about it. Until now. Janet, I didn't tell you that I was married, because, at first, it wasn't important. Then I was afraid that, if you knew, I wouldn't see you any more. And seeing you became quite important."

"Don't tell me if you don't want to, Jason."

"But I do." Doggedly he continued. "When I went to Yale, I was in complete ignorance of the whole area of human relations. I was also very lonely, and it made for a vulnerable combination. My father was a solitary man—he had few friends and practically no social contacts after my mother died."

As he talked a picture slowly emerged—as much from what he left unsaid as from what he said. Janet could almost see a tall, thin, younger Jason, inept in all but his academic work, drawn to the warmth and outgoing vitality with which Antonia, an Italian grocer's daughter, and her large family surrounded him. He spoke of their humor, their love of music and good food, the gaiety and the earthly old-world charm of the parents. He began to spend more and more time in their house on the outskirts of New Haven.

"I didn't realize that this was taken as an interest in Antonia. Finally it became clear that I was expected to marry her. I hadn't thought of it, but it didn't seem a bad idea. So I did."

Antonia, who lacked interest in an education, did not possess the natural virtues of her parents, and her own were lost in an environment she could not and did not want to understand. Jason retreated into his own world of work and study. Without love, common interests or mutual respects, even the physical relationship quickly cooled.

"And that's that," Jason concluded. "I am going to ask for a divorce. I think she'll probably be relieved. It can't have been pleasant for her—actually worse for her than for me. She's lonely. She'll talk to anyone who'll listen."

"Oh, Jason," Janet said, close to tears.

He got up. "I'd better leave now."

She followed him into the darkened hall. "Jason, I love you."

He caught her by the shoulders and bent down and kissed her. Suddenly a light blazed overhead. Janet blinked and backed away.

"Who is that man? Why are you kissing him?" Bruce's piercing little voice sounded half hysterical as he stood squinting against the light.

"He's a friend of mine and he's going home, so I'm kissing him goodby," Janet said. "What wakened you, Bruce?"

"My ear hurts." He began to cry.

"I'll go," Jason said. "Good night. I love you."

"I love you," she whispered.

And he was gone.

Janet got drops and a heating pad for Bruce's ear, chatting calmly with him as she did so.

The school year was over. Janet took her final exams.

She planted and cleaned house, stored winter clothes and brought out summer ones. All the while she waited to hear from Jason who would surely phone as soon as he returned from conference. He called ten days later.

"Janet? It's Jason."

"Yes. Hello. You're back." Her heart pounded. Here, slow down, she cautioned herself. It's only a man you love. "How was it?"

"The conference? Interesting. But my mind kept wandering. May I come up?"

"Yes."

"This evening?"

"Yes. Fine."

Her heart pounded again when she heard his car in the drive, and she'd barely dried her hands before he was at the door. He stepped inside, and they stood staring awkwardly at each other.

"You look wonderful," he said.

They exchanged their fund of the past week's events. Jason told her that Antonia had left to go to her parents for a while and that she had not seemed upset when he had talked to her about a divorce. She had promised to think it over while she was in New Haven.

She introduced the boys, annoyed at her own nervousness, but before they went to bed they said goodnight to him of their own accord and Janet felt that the first point had been scored.

Afterwards they sat on the terrace, their empty dinner trays beside them. Jason confided that he had been tentatively offered a job as head of the education department at a Western college and was pleased at Janet's delight, and agreed to pursue the offer. It was hard to part that night. It became harder each time they met.

Years later, Janet could still remember, in fine detail, those weeks from mid-June to August—those six weeks that were the length of their courtship.

They will sail from New York on Nov. 16.
